HENRY YOUTSEY FOUND GUILTY

Jury Returned Its Verdict Early This Morning.

GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT

DECLARED A PRINCIPAL IN THE GOEBEL MURDER CASE.

His Attorneys Will Move for an Arrest of Judgment and Ask for a Jury to Inquire Into Sanity of Convicted Man.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Oct. 20.—The jury in the case of Henry Youtesy, on trial on the charge of being a principal in the Goebel assassination, returned a verdict of guilty this morning, and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment.

The trial of Youtsey is declared to be without precedent in this state. He was stricken in court early in the week and has since 'ain in a semi-unconscious condition. The trial was postponed for several days in the expectation that he would recover, but as he did not show improvement the trial judge declared that the trial must proceed. The case was given to the jury last night.

When the jury was called this morning Judge Cantrill asked: "Gentlemen, have you made a verdict?"

The foreman, R. H. McCabe, nodded his head.

"Pass up the papers to the clerk," said the judge.

The sheriff passed them up and the clerk read the following:

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty

"Gentlemen, is that your verdict?" asked the judge.

"It is," was the reply.

The jury was then discharged and the trial was at an end.

It was learned from one of the jurymen that no ballot was taken last night. This morning the vote was unanimous that Youtsey was guilty. Then the degree of punishment was fixed.

Attorneys for the defense are preparing a motion for an arrest of judgment which, if sustained, will postpone the sentence of Youtsey till the next term of court in February. It is likely a jury will be empaneled as soon as practicable to inquire into Youtsey's sanity.

The defense filed their motion for an arrest of judgment and Judge Cantrill set the time for hearing on the second day of the February term. Youtsey will not be sentenced before that time. Youtsey will be taken to the Frankfort jail tonight for safe keeping.

CHRONOLOGY OF THE GOEBEL ASSASSINATION.

State Senator and Governor-elect William Goebel was shot and mortally wounded Jan. 30, 1900, by some person then unknown, who fired from a window in the state house.

Contest committee declared him the legally elected governor of the state Jan. 30. He was sworn in as such Jan. 31, on his deathbed.

Gov. Goebel died at 6:45 o'clock p. m., Feb. 3, 1900.

A special grandjury convened at Frankfort on April 18, indicted the following persons for the murder: Henry Youtsey, James Howard, Perry Howard, Harland Whittaker and "Tallow Dick" Combs (colored).

Those indicted as accessories before the fact were: Secretary of State Caleb Powers, Capt. Charles F. Powers, former Secretary of State Charles Finley, W. H. Culton and W. Wharton Golden.

Later a similar indictment was found against William S. Taylor, Goebel's Republican opponent for governor, who filled that office for some time before dispossessed. Taylor has never been arrested.

On Aug. 19 Caleb Powers was found guilty and later sentenced to the penitentiary.

On Sept. 29 James Howard was found guilty of firing the fatal shot and his punishment fixed at death by the jury.

ONE HUNDRED MEN LOST

They Lost Their Way in a Stampede From Dawson and Met With Great Suffering for Two Weeks.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 20.—Mining Recorder Burwash is down from the Clear Creek finds with F. B. Scroggie. Scroggie says that 100 stampeders from Dawson lost their way in the hills while crossing the bridge from Dominion Creek and great sufferings were experienced by a number. Many were without food other than that picked up, such as berries and roots and what they could shoot, for about two weeks.

Frank Slavin, the pugilist, was among them. It is not thought that any lost their lives. Many, though, were in rags and in an emaciated condition when they reached their destination. Reports of the finds are very favorable.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE OF BUSCH HALL

BUSCH HALL OF THE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY GROUP.

The ceremony of laying the corner stone of Busch Hall, one of the handsome group of the new Washington University buildings, was attended Saturday afternoon by a large gathering of prominent St. Louisans.

The principal address was delivered by Mr. Charles Nagel, who eloquently portrayed the purposes of the construction and the marvelous development of the university.

Rev. John W. Day of the Church of the Messiah spoke briefly of the university's purposes.

Both of the speakers gave abundant praise to Mr. Adolphus Busch, who donated $100,000 for the building of the hall.

The new structure will be devoted exclusively to chemistry.

NOTICES WILL NOT END STRIKE

President Mitchell Says No Partial Resumption.

MORE NOTICES ARE POSTED

MARKLES AND COXE BROS. REMAIN SILENT.

Smaller Colleries Have Granted Wage Advances and Great Interest Centers in the Action of the Two Named.

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 20.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers, practically admitted to a representative of the press that if every operator in the region were to post notices similiar to those that are now being tacked up by some of the mine owners, this action would in itself probably not end the strike. He was asked if all the companies were to post such notices what his next step would be. At first he hesitated and then replied:

"Under the conditions laid down by the Scranton miners' convention there could be no partial resumption of work."

When it was suggested that his reply did not answer the question, he said:

"Well, all I will say is that if all the companies post notices it would clear up matters considerably. It would remove some of the obstacles that now present themselves."

This is the first public statement that Mr. Mitchell has made bearing on a settlement of the contest since the operators at Scranton took their decided stand that the reduction of powder price must be considered in figuring out the advance in wages.

Notices similar to those already posted by individual operators in this region were issued today by three more companies. They were J. S. Wentz & Co., operating Silver Brook colliery; Dodson & Co., owners of mines at Morea and Beaver Brook, and the Mill Creek Coal Co., which operates collieries at Buck Mountain and New Boston in Schuylkill County. Tyler & McTurk, who operate a washery at Audenreid, employing about 50 men, have posted a notice giving employes an increase in wages of 10 per cent.

The only large individual operators in this region that have not posted what is known as the second notice, are Coxe Bros. & Co., G. B. Markle & Co. and the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Co. There is much interest manifested here as to what steps, if any, the Markle firm will take. This firm is the only one in this region which has not consented to give its employes an increase of any sort.

The members of the firm maintain a strict silence.

Mr. Mitchell is said to be contemplating a trip to Scranton next week, but for what purpose is not known. Nothing has been said here about another convention, and there is no probability of a conference of strike leaders here to-day.

WM. H. MILTENBERGER WEDS

Wealthy Young St. Louisan, Recently Divorced, Married Saturday at Farmington, Mo.

William H. Miltenberger, a well-known young St. Louisan, was married at Farmington, Mo., Tuesday night; to Miss Maude Reynolds of St. Louis. After the ceremony, they left for Bonne Terre, Mo., where the groom is connected with a lead company.

Only a few weeks ago, Miltenberger secured a divorce from his first wife, who was Miss Lillian Clark of Chicago. She is at present in France with her father and her only child.

Miltenberg comes of an old St. Louis family and inherited some money when he became of age. He met Miss Clark, an estimable young woman, at a summer resort several years ago, and their marriage in Chicago was quite a society event, her family being prominent there. Her father owns the Lexington Hotel in that city.

The Miltenbergers separated a few years ago and she went abroad with her father. Then he filed suit for divorce. She filed a cross-bill in order to retain possession of her child. The decree was awarded him on the ground of desertion.

DREDGING THE RESERVOIR

IN PRESENCE OF CROWDS

ALONG COMPTON HEIGHTS

Curiosity Seekers Constantly Watch the Workmen, in the Expectation That Little George Susanka's Body May Be Recovered.

Groups of people constantly line the banks of the Compton Heights reservoir, while the workmen are at work dredging the bottom, watching to see if the body of little George Susanka be found in the mud that covers the bottom.

The crowds were large before Friday, but when the Post-Dispatch announced exclusively that the police and the relatives of the Susanka boy were watching the work and expecting that the body might be unearthed public interest in the Susanka mystery was revived, and the reservoir was visited by more people than ever saw it before in the same length of time.

The work is not progressing as rapidly now as it will after a while. Only a small area has been cleared away. That is along the wall that separates the two reservoirs. This was done that the wall might be braced and the other reservoir filled to its usual height without there being any danger of the wall giving way beneath the pressure.

At present the workmen turn small streams of water on the piles of mud. Ordinary firemen's hose is used, and the stream is only about two inches. This water softens the mud, and it is reduced to a liquid and swept to one corner, where an immense pump forces the mixture into a sewer which is kept constantly flushed, and thence it finds its way back to the river. A temporary water main has been constructed around the reservoir. This main is made of eight-inch pipe, and several large streams may be thrown on the mud and thus carry it off much more rapidly.

Besides this method there is a constant stream of water running through the reservoir, and a score of men equipped with wooden scrapers shove the mud toward the syphon in the corner, where it comes under the influence of the big pumps.

MOTHER'S MIND IS DERANGED

Mrs. Maria Johnson Separated From Her Three Children by a Strange Hallucination.

Spiritualism seems to have deranged the mind of Mrs. Maria Johnson, 1454 Talmage avenue, and she is at the City Hospital for observation.

Mrs. Johnson was taken to the hospital Friday night, her husband, Christian Johnson, and their three little daughters, accompanying her.

The husband told the hospital doctors that his wife has been for some time laboring under the hallucination that she is receiving messages from sisters who are dead. He declared that his wife's attendance at spiritualistic seances has resulted in her present condition.

Mrs. Johnson has been a patient at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium.

She wept bitterly when separated from her husband and children and kissed them tenderly as a nurse led her to her cell in the observation ward. The children and father, each with tearful eyes, left the hospital immediately, and the attendants declared it one of the most pathetic scenes that they had ever witnessed.

Mrs. Johnson was unable to talk coherently Saturday morning, except in begging to see her children and husband. She told of her nightly seances with relatives in the other world. While a thorough investigation of her case has not as yet been made, the hospital doctors say they fear it has reached the incurable stage.

FINED FOR PLAYING CRAPS.

Three Negroes Compelled to Pay the Large Sum of $5 Each.

The police department succeeded in securing the conviction of three negroes, James Parks, Bud Ross and Bert Tuyne, for shooting craps Saturday morning in the City Hall Police Court. The men were arrested in the rear of 4007 Chouteau avenue, where a craps game has been in daily progress for some time.

Officers Maloney and Dean, who arrested the men, stated to the court that the police department had received many complaints from neighboring residents of the existence of these games. The men were each fined $5.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

IMPERIALISM CAUSED ARREST

Jacob Eisen Allowed Desire for Knowledge to Run Away With His Judgment.

A desire for knowledge and the reading of good books, has got Jacob Eisen, a 15-year-old boy residing at 1136 North Seventh street, into trouble.

The story of young Jacob's troubles is unusual. Boys have more frequently been taken into custody by the police, after reading books and novels of the yellow-back variety. Jacob's mind, however, ran to a higher class of literature, and he secured a book from the Public Library dealing with imperialism.

The rules of the Public Library require that all persons who obtain books from it must file a certificate bearing the name of a property owner, as surety that the books will be returned.

Young Eisen applied at the library for a book on imperialism, but was refused, having filed no certificate.

The lad's burning desire for knowledge of the question of imperialism, that is now the paramount issue in the campaign, would not allow him to let a little matter like a certificate signed by a property owner stand in the way, and that is why a warrant charging petit larceny was issued Saturday.

Michael Novak, 1127 North Seventh street, stated to Prosecuting Attorney Clover that Eisen had signed his name to the certificate, on which he secured a book valued at $1.50 from the library.

KENTUCKY'S ELECTION LAW

It Will Be Passed Today, but the Election Will Be Under the Goebel Law.

MUSCULAR PRIEST WINS

IN COLISEUM CONTEST

AT PUTTING HEAVY SHOT

Assistant Pastor of the Visitation Church Easily Carried Off Athletic Honors by a Remarkable Feat at the Coliseum.

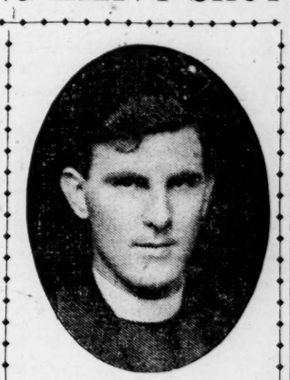

Muscular Christianity has an exponent in St. Louis in the person of Rev. Father Maurice R. O'Flaherty, assistant pastor of the Visitation Church, Taylor and Easton avenues.

Among the hundreds of persons who witnessed the shot-putting contest in the Coliseum Friday night were several of Father O'Flaherty's parishioners. The form and features of the winner of the contest seemed familiar to them, but it was not until the announcer called out the name of "M. O'Flaherty" as the victor that they realized that the young man whom they saw in the arena, clad in the light, sleeveless costume of an athlete, was the priest whom they were accustomed to see in the robe and triangular cap of his office.

The shot, which Father O'Flaherty tossed around as if it were so much rubber, was not one of the 16-pound affairs with which college boys amuse themselves. It was a 56-pound weight, and to the few persons among the promoters of the contest, who knew the young priest, it was a foregone conclusion that he would be an easy winner.

Although he went into the contest without training, he put the weight 20 feet, 5½ inches, which was almost three feet beyond the throw of William Bick, who won second honors.

Father O'Flaherty holds the championship of Ireland as a 56-pound shot-putter, his record of 21 feet, 3½ inches, having been made at Marysboro, Queens County, in 1896. He has made 22 feet, 6 inches, in practice. His favorite ornament, and the only jewelry which he wears, is the handsome

REV. F. M. O'FLAHERTY.

Celtic cross, inscribed in Gaelic letters, which he won on that occasion.

"I certainly believe athletic exercise is a good thing for a priest," said Father O'Flaherty to the Post-Dispatch. "No man can fail to be better fitted for any kind of work by muscular exertion, and this is especially true when one's duties are so confining as those of a priest. I am sorry that my calling became known. I would have preferred to have been known simply as one of the contestants from Christian Brothers' College, with whose athletes I entered."

CAR RAN INTO FAMILY PARTY

Mrs. M'Kibban and Child Painfully Hurt.

THREE CHILDREN ESCAPED

SECOND CAR CRASHED INTO THE WAITING AMBULANCE.

Mrs. M'Kibban Was Driving With Her Four Children on St. Louis Avenue When Cass Avenue Car Collided With Them.

While Mrs. Joseph McKibban and her four children of 4209 McRee avenue were driving on St. Louis avenue, near Semple avenue, Saturday afternoon, a car of the Cass avenue division of the St. Louis Transit Co. ran into the vehicle.

Mrs. McKibban and her youngest child, 1 year old, were painfully hurt, and the vehicle was demolished.

While the health department ambulance was standing at the scene of the accident, another car ran into it, damaging the rear end.

Mrs. McKibban and the children were sent home.

The car struck Mrs. McKibban's vehicle squarely, overturning it, and breaking it up. Mrs. McKibban and the children were thrown violently to the street.

Three of the children escaped with scratches and bruises. The baby was unconscious when picked up and remained so for several minutes.

It is thought to be internally injured. Mrs. McKibban was also severely injured.

Driver Calvin Thomas of the health department ambulance backed up to where the demolished carriage lay, in order to pick up the victims. In order to do so he had to back his ambulance onto the track.

While it was standing in this position another car approached. It came slowly until within a few feet of the ambulance, and then its speed increased suddenly, and it collided with the rear of the ambulance with a crash. The body of the ambulance was broken, but it was not put out of service, and was used to carry the mother and children to their home.

THE EMPEROR AND THE VATICAN

Appointment of Von Beulow, It Is Said, Promises to Renew Controversy of Several Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—It is stated in high church circles in Washington that the appointment of Count Von Buelow to be minister of foreign affairs of Germany promises to revive controversies between the Vatican and the German Emperor.

In 1897, at a time when the German Emperor sought to assume the protectorate of Christianity in the Holy Land and at a most critical period of negotiations with the Vatican, Count Von Buelow was accredited as the imperial German ambassador to Pope Leo XIII. This was a departure from the usages of the German emperors, and the step was heralded as an evidence of a complete reconciliation between the Vatican and Berlin. The count did not hold the position more than a month. Almost coincident with his reception at the Vatican the notice of his promotion to the ministry of the imperial foreign office was published.

Two stories explanatory of this are told. One is that Italy objected to a member of the triple alliance taking so open an interest in the sovereignty, spiritual or temporal, of the pope as to appoint an ambassador to him. The other story is that Count Von Buelow was indiscreet in permitting his emperor to believe that the pope acquiesced in the German protectorate of the Holy Land.

Pope Leo XIII afterwards addressed an encyclical to the French bishops, in which he attributed the rumors that Emperor William had been acknowledged as the protector of the Christians in the East to indiscreet and unfounded diplomatic gossip.

The Catholic hierarchy throughout the world will now watch with considerable interest the development of Von Buelow's attitude toward Pope Leo.

Banker Ferguson Dead.

HE BROKE AWAY FROM A BED POST

Elbert Hart, Aged 13, Objected to Being Tied.

JUMPED FROM A WINDOW

THEN HE LEFT HOME TO FIND HIS BROTHER.

Boy Determined to Leave the City and Join a Brother Who Is Employed on a Farm in Maries County.

After freeing himself from the coils of a rope that held him a prisoner, Elbert Hart, aged 13 years, jumped 12 feet from a window at his home, 2104 North Tenth street, early Saturday morning and started out for the sixth time to find his elder brother, William, who is enjoying life on a farm in Maries County, Missouri.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mary Hart, says she tied him to a bed to prevent him running away. After Elbert escaped she followed him, but was soon distanced.

Police Captain Michael O'Malley of the North Market street station was notified, and all the resources of the department will be employed to capture the youngster.

Mrs. Hart thinks Elbert crossed the river in a skiff. She smiled when asked if she did not consider that a rather hazardous trip for her son.

"Why, not at all," she said. "There's not much that Elbert can't do. If you know of any boy in North St. Louis who can beat him running, swimming, or in any other line of physical exercise I would like to see him. He is a wild boy, I confess, but there is one thing can be said in his favor—he never spoke a disrespectful word to his mother.

"Since last summer, when I took him away from the Douglass School—I was forced by circumstances to do so—he has been working at the Standard Stamping Co. Just a short time before that I sent my oldest boy to a farm my folks have out in Missouri.

"I had intended to send Elbert there, too, but his wages helped to support the family. Though he might be considered a mere mite of a man he knows a whole lot about mechanics. My husband has been dead some time, and I have had to work hard.

"Elbert often said to me that he would like to see Will, and I would always say that when he had saved up enough money he could go there on a visit. He commenced going away from home six or eight months ago, but he seldom ever stayed away more than a week. He never gave me any satisfaction about his wanderings, and I supposed on one or two occasions he was trying to find his brother.

"I have locked Elbert in his room for hours and made him promise me he would not to be incorrigible again and when I tied him in his room last night I thought that would teach him a lesson.

"He loosened or broke the rope without much trouble. He lifted the window and jumped out. I heard him, but it was too late."

Elbert Hart is described as having jet black hair, dark eyes and a round face. He weighs 110 pounds and is said to be remarkably bright for his age. His apparel consists of a dark suit, small Fedora hat, blue shirt and black lace shoes. When at leisure, his mother states, he spent much time around the North Market street ferry and knew every fisherman along the river front.

FOUND FIANCE WAS BALDHEADED

The Young Man With the License in His Pocket Fainted and the Wedding Is Off.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 20.—Because he accidentally discovered on the eve of marriage that his betrothed was baldheaded, a well-known young man of this city, whose name is withheld, refused to make her his wife. With the license in his pocket he called on his fiancee. He caught sight of her bald head and fainted. When he came around he declared the wedding was off.

SENATOR MASON'S MIND.

Not That, but His Attitude That Has Changed on Expansion Question.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Oct. 20.—Senators Mason and Cullom met here this morning to go to Fairfield today. Senator Mason, in a speech in this county, denies that he changed his mind personally on the expansion question. He simply changed his attitude when instructed to do so by the Illinois Legislature.

IS ACCUSED OF KILLING FRIEND

Adolph Mahaney in the St. Louis Jail.

GIRL'S LOVE CAUSE OF KILLING

MAHANEY AND JAMES CRESS LOVED MARY REED.

Mahaney Says He Killed Cress in Maries County, Mo., and He Will Be Tried for the Crime After a Chase of Seven Years.

Adolph Mahaney, a remarkable fugitive, who, with the charge of murdering his friend hanging over his head, has eluded the law for seven years, was brought to St. Louis Saturday morning by Sheriff Murphy of Watonga, Blair County, O. T., and lodged in Four Courts jail for safe keeping.

Mahaney shot and killed James Cress under the most romantic circumstances at a country dance near Lane's Prairie, Maries County, Mo., on Nov. 23, 1893.

Jealousy is the motive ascribed to the slayer, who told the Post-Dispatch Saturday morning that he was deeply enamoured of Miss Mary Reed, a pretty country lass, and the daughter of a well-to-do farmer of that county.

To Avoid Danger of Lynching.

Owing to the excitement caused by the capture of Mahaney it was deemed prudent to bring him to St. Louis and keep him here until his trial, which will come up at a special session of the Maries County Circuit Court in December on a recent indictment for the old crime.

Mahaney was picturesque as he sat talking to the Post-Dispatch in the Four Courts holdover awaiting his transfer to the city jail, where he will spend the time between now and his trial.

A broad brim black hat flared upward from his forehead. A curling mass of hair escaping from the hat band fell down to the eybrows. His small brown mustache curls at the ends and is too short to cover a row of sharp pointed teeth. He talks like a countryman.

Turned Tables On the Sheriff.

It is due to Sheriff T. V. Imboden of Dixon, Mo., that the man who has dodged the police of cities and the constabulary of towns is now safe in this city. At one time in Beatrice, Neb., Mahaney was located in a hotel. The sheriff of that county surprised him in bed. Mahaney is said to have taken the capture coolly. Pointing to a trunk that stood in the corner he said:

"You will find $500 in that trunk. Give me 20 minutes to get away and it is yours."

The officer appeared to be credulous and while stooping over to examine the contents he was pushed head first into the trunk and the lid was slammed down by Mahaney who held the officer in this position until he had disarmed him. The prisoner then leaped from a second story window and escaped.

Cress Shot at a Dance.

The townspeople of Dixon and Lanes Prairie recall, with the capture of Mahaney, the love affair that led to the killing of one of its young men and the hunting down of the other.

Both Mahaney and Cress were in love with the same girl, Miss Mary Reed. Cress escorted her to a dance, and Mahaney, smarting under what he believed to have been a betrayal of his friendship by Cress, went to the scene of rustic festivity armed.

While Cress was standing in the midst of a group of laughing girls Mahaney is said to have leaned across a fence and fired the fatal shot. The bullet entered the heart, and Cress fell dead into the arms of his sister.

Revisted Scene of the Killing.

The dancers were panic stricken and the gayety broke up in wild disorder. Mahaney mounted a waiting horse and rode away in the night. Twice since the killing he says that he has visited the scene of the murder and has seen the young woman who was the innocent cause of the shedding of a friend's blood.

"I begged her on my bended knees to come away with me," he said to the Post-Dispatch. "I told her that I had done it for her sake. She was about to fly away with me when her parents found it out and kept her from doing it. I have heard from her several times. I do not know whether she still cares for me, but I think she does.

"I shot Cress and killed him, but he tried to start a racket with me," said Mahaney. "It is true that I shot him across a fence. I left the town because I was scared by what I had done and I was afraid I would not get a fair trial at that time.

"I went South to live with my uncle, J. J. Skaggs of Benton, Ark., where I stayed until Dec. 24. Then I went down into Oklahoma."

Large rewards have been offered on different occasions for the capture of Mahaney. As much as $2000 was once offered. Several times information has been secured as to his whereabouts, but he has escaped each time.

MOTHER RECOVERS A CHILD

Mrs. Griffen, Forced to Part With Them, Hopes to Find Two Others.

The movements of a mysterious Mrs. Griffin are exciting interest at Belleville.

She claims that she gave her three children to an orphan asylum near Belleville several years ago, when she was unable to support them.

Now she wants the children back and has encountered an unexpected difficulty. When she went to the asylum Friday she was shown a deed by which she had relinquished the legal claim to her children. Mrs. Griffin claims she signed this paper without understanding its purport.

The children have been adopted by different families.

Mrs. Griffin has recovered her youngest daughter, Mary. This child had been adopted by George Ehrhardt of Freeburg.

When Mr. and Mrs. Ehrhardt heard Mrs. Griffin's story their hearts were touched by the mother's pleadings, and although they were greatly attached to the child, they surrendered her to the mother.

Mrs. Griffin says she will trace up all her children and secure possession of them. She has ample means to care for them now, and she says she will never know a moment's peace until she shall have recovered the children she was forced to give away.

A CARGO OF CRIPPLED MEN

Transport Sherman Brings in Many Wounded Heroes.

ONE MAN'S FACE TORN OFF

THE WOUND OF A BRITISH SHELL AT BATTLE OF TIEN TSIN.

Five Other Men Have Each Lost a Leg in China—Lieut. Lee, Son of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Another Sick Passenger.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 20.—Among the invalid soldiers who arrived on the transport Sherman is one of the most grievously wounded soldiers who ever entered the Presidio General Hospital. He is Private R. W. Adams of Company A, Fourteenth Infantry, who took part in the battle of Tien Tsin, and was one of the relief column that pushed on to beleaguered Pekin. He was wounded at Yang Tsun by one of the British shells dropped by mistake within the American lines. The whole of one side of his face, his nose and one eye were literally torn off by a fragment of the missile.

Five men, each of whom lost a leg in the Orient, came home together on the Sherman. They are: Arthur Kosloske, Sixth Infantry, wounded at Tien Tsin; George King, Fourteenth Infantry, wounded at Pekin; Charles Johnson, Fourteenth Infantry, crippled at Yung Tsun; Joseph Beir, Thirty-seventh U. S. V., wounded in the Philippines, and James Iakin, Fourteenth Infantry, injured Aug. 6 on the march to Pekin.

Another passenger is First Lieut. Lee of the Thirty-ninth Infantry, son of Brigadier-General Fitzhugh Lee, now at Havana. He is suffering from disease contracted in the jungles of southern Luzon.

Lieut. Lee says the Filipinos usually fire from ambush, aiming at the American officers. He saw Capt. W. L. Murphy of his regiment shot down by natives concealed in a hut.

First Lieut. Harry F. Rethers of the now famous Ninth Infantry Regiment, is another arrival from China. Accompanying him is his wife, the daughter of Maj. Lee, who succeeded to the command of the Ninth at the death of Col. Liscum.

Lieut. Rethers has been mentioned for gallant conduct at Tien Tsin and Pekin and has been recommended for a brevet.

His story of the march to Pekin shows that the men suffered terribly from heat, the thermometer standing as high as 120 in the shade.

AMENDMENT WORKERS WANTED

Citizens Are Requested to Lend World's Fair Committee Assistance on Election Day.

Volunteers to work on behalf of constitutional amendments 4 and 5 are wanted by the special committee of 200 in charge of the World's Fair.

It is proposed to have a representative in every precinct of the city on election day.

That the necessary arrangements may be completed and assignments made, it is requested that in the interest of the Fair subscribers or others willing to devote part of their time to the work on Nov. 6 send their names without delay to John B. O'Meara, chairman of the special of the precinct committee, Wainwright building; Gov. D. R. Francis, chairman of the executive committee, 214 North Fourth street, or to James Cox, secretary, Mercantile Club building.

INJUNCTION IS DISMISSED.

Kinloch and Seckner Companies Agreed Out of Court.

The injunction proceedings of the Kinloch Telephone Company against the Seckner Constructing Company, in which an order restraining defendant from stringing its wires near those of the plaintiff, was asked, was dismissed Saturday by Judge Klein.

The dismissal was based upon a stipulation entered into by the parties by which their differences were adjusted in an amicable manner.

The plaintiff asked for the order on the ground that the alleged excessive voltage passing over the defendant's wires endangered the lives of the patrons of the telephone company by charging its wires with heavy currents.

STARTS WITH A COLD.

Catarrh is a Lingering Cold Which Refuses to Yield to Ordinary Treatment.

Catarrh usually starts with a cold in the head and if left unchecked in this climate, rarely gets well of itself.

As fresh cold is taken the disease spreads, getting deeper and deeper, creeping along the mucous membranes from nose to throat, from throat to windpipe, from windpipe to bronchial tubes and from bronchial tubes to lung cells.

The mucous membranes all connect, one with another. Hence it is easy to spread from one part to another lined with this same membrane. This is why catarrh in the head soon affects the throat and finally the stomach itself, bringing on chronic catarrh of the stomach, which is a most obstinate form of dyspepsia.

Everybody is now well agreed that catarrh is a blood disease and not a local one, and the attempt to cure by local applications simply gives temporary relief from the purely local symptoms without the remotest effect in staying the progress of the disease.

There is a new preparation recently offered to the public that is apparently destined to do away with every other form of catarrh treatment.

This new remedy is not a secret patent medicine, but is a large, pleasant tasting tablet, composed of Sauguinaria, Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Hydrastin and other valuable and harmless specifics, which are taken internally and seem to have a remarkably beneficial effect upon the blood and mucous membranes, apparently eliminating the catarrhal poison from the whole system.

These tablets, while being pleasant, convenient and absolutely safe to use, have made cures in long-standing cases of catarrh that are little short of marvelous. They are sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and any catarrh sufferer who has tried inhalers, lotions, ointments, salves, etc., and realized their inconvenience and uselessness, will fully appreciate the difference between a mere palliative and a permanent cure after giving Stuart's Catarrh Tablets an impartial trial.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized package and no matter where the catarrh is located, in the head, throat, lungs or stomach, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets will surprise you with the effective results of even a few days' use.

SOMETHING NEW.

LOVE.

A mighty pain to love it is,
And 'tis a pain that pain to miss;
But of all pains, the greatest pain
It is to love, but love in vain.
—Cowley.

Of the great Charles Sumner it was said: "Everything seems to have been expected of him, and he disappointed nobody."

If you were in the Hall of Fame,
I know that I'd be proud
To come and "rubber" at your name
In such a brainy crowd.

Here are a few of the good features, all illustrated, which you will find in tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch:

A story of filial devotion, in the real life of today, which equals or surpasses all of the examples to be found in the Bible, in secular history or in literature, ancient or modern. A tender and sympathetic narrative, full of the deepest human interest.

The history of a famous case which is without parallel now before the public. The nearest approach to it is a case recorded in the courts of St. Louis and Missouri.

The part taken by St. Louis and Missouri women in the establishment of a great university, the only one of its kind in the United States.

An epitome of a novel, just published, of which a Missouri girl is the heroine; a novel as absorbing as "Trilby," "Frankenstein" or "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," yet totally different.

The discovery made by a St. Louis scientist, detailed by himself.

A St. Louis soldier's letter from China.

Among the list of halftone pictures you will find the following:

OUT-OF-TOWN BEAUTIES.

Miss Pearl Doles, St. Joseph, Mo.
Miss Lulu Freeman, East St. Louis, Ill.
Miss Jessie Darling Kenney, Maryville, Mo.
Miss Rosalie Denlo, Vicksburg, Miss.
Miss Florence Winner, Meridian, Miss.

ST. LOUISANS AND VISITORS.

Miss Maud McCullough, 4 North Spring avenue.
Miss Nettie Bienenstock, 4116 West Pine boulevard.
Miss Lillian Holmes, 3665 Delmar boulevard.
Miss Grace Gosting, 4123 Washington boulevard.
Mrs. Blanch Smith, 1142 Bayard avenue.
Miss Tillie Mays, 2939 Rutger street.
Miss Ada Gillam of Palmer, Mo., visiting her aunt, Mrs. Stickley of Cottage avenue.
Miss J. V. Boweles of Walla Walla, Wash., visiting at 221 Whitman street.
Miss Edna Rines of Gainsville, Tex., guest of Mrs. A. D. Hopkins, 4483 West Morgan street.
Miss Ruby Bevins of Liberty, Mo., who has been visiting Miss Virginia Lee, 5349 Cabanne place.

But these are not all, gentle reader, as even the most hurried glance at the pages of tomorrow's Sunday Post-Dispatch will convince you. In no other Sunday newspaper will you find such a delightful assortment of engaging features, and none so richly illustrated. The pictures alone will be worth the price of admission.

JOINED A GYPSY BAND

TEN-YEAR-OLD CHILD GIVEN TO THE WANDERERS.

PARENTS HAD BEEN GYPSIES

Louis Gauch, a Farmer of St. Clair County, Ill., Says He Permitted Annie Hughes to Go.

Annie Hughes, 10 years old, has disappeared from the vicinity of Douglas, in St. Clair County. The impression of the people of that vicinity is that she was stolen by a band of gypsies who were encamped a few days ago near Freeburg. Louis Gauch, at whose home the girl was staying temporarly, says she was not stolen, but that he gave her to the gypsies when he saw she was determined to run away and join them.

Over a year ago the little girl was taken by Mrs. Marie Stitzel of Douglas to raise. She expressed a desire to Supervisor Alonzo A. Miller to have a child to live with her. This child was at the County Farm, her mother being in jail. Mr. Miller secured her and took her to the home of Mr. Stitzel. Mr. Stitzel, it is stated, found difficulty in controlling her. Mrs. Stitzel having occasion to leave her home for several weeks, she sent the girl to the home of Louis Gauch, a neighbor.

She returned Friday and went to the Gauch residence to get the girl. She was told that she had gone with the gypsies.

Mr. Gauch says the child was incorrigible and was constantly declaring she wanted to be a gypsy, because her parents had been gypsies. He heard that gypsies were camped near Freeburg and when he casually mentioned this the girl became excited and threatened to join them.

Several daye later, while he was at work, in a field, he saw the girl running along the road away from the house. He asked her where she was going and she said she was going to join the gypsies. He told her she need not walk to the camp, so if she was determined to join them he would take her there. He did so and asked the gypsies if they would take her. They agreed and he left her playing in the camp with the other children.

KRUGER FEARED BOERS.

Reason Given for His Hasty and Secret Embarkation.

LOURENZO MARQUES, Oct. 20.—The reason given for President Kruger's hasty and secret embarkation on the steamship Gelderland, which will not sail until tonight, is that he feared the Boers here would attack him.

MYSTERIOUS GIRL SAW DUTCH SADIE

Begged Her to Release Young Roosevelt.

WAS WEALTHY AND BEAUTIFUL

WEPT AND GROVELED AT THE PAINTED WOMAN'S FEET.

"He's Engaged," She Cried When She Heard He Was About to Wed a Woman of the Tenderloin Set—Name Concealed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Who is the young woman of the four hundred who tried to save young James R. Roosevelt, Jr., from "Dutch Sadie," but failed, cannot be learned.

"Dutch" Sadie has not yet become angry enough to reveal the name.

There is no doubt that on June 14 last James R. Roosevelt, Jr., and a Sadie Messinger were married. Roosevelt is the son of a former secretary of the American legation in London. His mother was Miss Helen Astor, sister of John Jacob Astor. He is a cousin of Gov. Roosevelt. The boy is worth $750,000, which earns him an income of $25,000 a year.

From the lips of "Dutch" Sadie fell the story of the Fifth avenue girl who tried to rescue the youth.

Said She Was Engaged to Him.

"Why, sure," she laughed, "one of those swell women from Fifth avenue came up to see me. She told me she was engaged to Jim. She told me her name. What was it? Oh, forget it! She begged me tell her all about it. I told her there wasn't anything to tell. I just said that Jim loved me and I loved him.

"And then all of a sudden she went down on her knees and begged me to say it wasn't so. 'He's engaged,' she cried.

"'What are you giving me?' cried I.

"Say, she groveled on the floor in front of me. She was cutting up awful, so I told her I loved Jim and he loved me, and that we proposed getting married whether his people cared about it or not.

"Say, I didn't have to marry the whole Roosevelt family, Teddy and all, did I? But say, she kept right on crying.

"She came in a fine carriage and she was dressed just like the swells. She was pretty, too. She looked all right, but the idea of her coming here and telling me that Jim belonged to her and not to me!

Says She Wants Jim Back.

"I'm just as good as she. Perhaps I was married to Jim and perhaps I was not. Anyway he lives here and I keep house for him. Jim's all right and I want him back. I'm going to get my lawyer after his folks, too."

Last March young Roosevelt went to the Haymarket with a party of young Roysterers. There he met "Dutch" Sadie. Suddenly Sadie blossomed out with a carriage, diamonds, wonderful gowns and a pocket book full of money. The two went to the city hall on June 14 and were married. The father never guessed that there was a marriage. When he heard the truth he made a hasty visit to New York, saw the woman and took his son away.

ASKS CARE FOR CHILDREN.

Charles Willoughby Wants the City to Be a Mother to Them.

Charles and William Willoughby, aged 9 and 3 respectively, were placed in the care of Matron Kintzing at the Four Courts Saturday by their father, Charles Willoughby of 1903 North Broadway. He wishes to have them put in a children's home and asks the matron to hold them until Monday, when the mayor can commit them to some institution.

Willoughby says the mother of the children was sent to the asylum Monday, and that he is unable to care for his offspring properly.

COULDN'T FACE A BIG WEDDING.

Joseph Britt and Miss Bonner Went to St. Charles to Wed.

Joseph C. Britt of 4728 Hammett place and Miss Virginia Bonner of 5259 Vernon avenue, elopers who feared the embarrassment of a regular church wedding more than superstition, fled to St. Charles Friday and were married there by the pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The young couple have been "keeping company" for four years and there was no family opposition to the union. But neither party dared face a regular church wedding with bridegrooms, maids and "the voice that breathed through Eden" accessories, so they settled the question by a Friday elopement.

Then they came home and were forgiven. Mr. Britt is the son of Thomas J. Britt of the St. Louis Mirror Co. The bride is the daughter of the late Samuel Bonner, iron merchant.

GEN. LEONARD WOOD ARRIVES

Says the Increase in Yellow Fever at Havana Is Due to Spanish Emigrants and Is Not Serious.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Major-General Leonard Wood, governor of Cuba, arrived today from Havana. He will proceed immediately to Washington and return to Havana by way of Tampa, Fla.

Gen. Wood said, "I came up from Havana at the request of the department, and to make preparations to take my family down to Cuba, as I shall be unable to come up again during the winter. I shall return to Havana before the end of October, in order to be on hand for the constitutional convention, which meets Nov. 5 next.

"Affairs are quiet in Cuba, and the people are busy preparing for the convention. The death rate in Havana, including yellow fever, is smaller than for many years. The recent increase in yellow fever cases is attributed to the large immigration of Spaniards.

"The immigrants are not immunes, and are susceptible to the disease, not only on this account but from the fact that they have no conception of sanitation when exposed to the effects of the disease. However, we are making arrangements to establish a quarantine system of detaining them on Hulks until they can be forwarded through to their destinations in the country districts. Of course many will stay in Havana, finding employment in the warehouses and factories, and we must expect to find cases of yellow fever among them."

WILL FREE INNOCENT NEGRO

Two Brothers Arrested at Paducah Confess Murder at Johnsonville, Tenn., for Which Another Man Is Under Arrest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 20.—The authorities this morning arrested and placed in jail here pending the arrival of officers from Johnsonville, Tenn., Thawyer and Nathan Nash, brothers. The men have confessed that they killed Watchman Johnson of the freight elevator at that place Oct. 9.

A negro blacksmith is now under arrest at Johnsonville charged with the same murder.

MRS. WRIGHT NOT INFORMED

St. Louis Woman Does Not Know the Manner in Which Her Son Was Killed.

Kind neighbors are keeping from aged Mrs. Sophie Wright of 1012 North Sarah street the news of the terrible manner in which her son, Dr. Charles H. Wright, met his death at New Bloomfield, Mo.

As related in Friday's Post-Dispatch, the charred body of Dr. Wright was found in the ruins of his drug store at New Bloomfield, with the skull crushed by a blow from one of the incendiary burglars whom is it supposed that he found in the place and endeavored to drive out.

Since the first tidings of the death of Dr. Wright reached this city from New Bloomfield, Friday, the proofs of robbery and murder have become so strong that no doubt remains in the minds of the authorities there that the physician was killed by the men who took his watch and jewelry and who carried away the contents of his cash drawer. While Mrs. Wright has been informed of her son's death, no one has yet told her of the tragical circumstances attending it, as it is feared that the shock would be too great for the afflicted woman.

Edward Wright, a brother of the dead

man, has gone to New Bloomfield for the remains, and the funeral will be held in this city on his return.

Dr. Wright was 57 years old and a widower. He came to St. Louis 25 years ago and practiced medicine in this city until 1890. For a part of this time he was proprietor of a drug store at Sarah and Fairfax avenue. Ten years ago he removed to New Bloomfield, where he has since resided. He was a finely educated man and an earnest student. His last visit to his mother in this city was made about one year ago.

PERCY KENNETT DEAD

FORMER ST. LOUISAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIMSELF.

PISTOL FELL FROM A DRAWER

Tragedy in Montana Connected With One of the Old and Wealthy Pioneer Families of This City.

R. Percy Kennett, a native of St. Louis and a member of the old and wealthy Kennett family of this city, accidentally shot and killed himself at Victor, Mont., Thursday, according to a press dispatch from Helena, Mont.

Mr. Kennett, who was a member of the Montana State Game and Fish Commission and a prominent and wealthy sportsman and cattle owner of that state, was rummaging through a drawer, when a loaded revolver fell out of the drawer on the floor. The weapon was discharged as it struck the floor and a bullet went crashing through Mr. Kennett's head, killing him instantly.

Mr. Kennett was 39 years old. His grandfather was the late Ferdinand Kennett, a prominent St. Louisan in his day and a brother of Luther M. Kennett, who was mayor of St. Louis about half a century ago and whose widow, Mrs. Agnes Kennett, resides at 3507 Lucas avenue.

While he was quite young his parents were divorced and his mother married a distant connection of the Kennett family named Hauser. They removed to Montana where Mr. Hauser became governor of the state in recent years.

Percy Kennett settled permanently in Montana and seldom visited his native city. Some of his relatives here say they have not seen him since he was a boy. He went into the cattle business in Montana and prospered. He was married some years ago to a daughter of A. M. Holter, a millionaire of Montana.

In his earlier years Mr. Kennett was a partner of Granville Stuart and took part in the famous raid led by that pioneer through Judith County, Montana, in which many cattle rustlers were shot and hanged. Kennett Castle, a picturesque summer home on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi some miles below Jefferson Barracks, was built by Percy Kennett's grandfather.

GIRL ROBBED BY A NEGRO.

Miss Elsie Ritter Beaten in the Face and Badly Hurt.

A negro purse snatcher beat and robbed Miss Elsie Ritter, aged 17, near her home, 1118 Dolman street, Friday night. The young woman's purse, which the robber carried away, contained only a few cents, but the fright resulting from her adventure was a severe one.

Miss Ritter was on her way home about 7 o'clock Friday evening and crossed Chouteau avenue when a negro rushed out at her from an alley, threw his arms about her and struck her twice in the face with his fist. Seizing Miss Ritter's purse, her assailant ran down the alley and disappeared before she had recovered her presence of mind sufficiently to make an outcry.

The young woman's only injury was a cut on her lip, inflicted by the highwayman's fist.

NEGRO SUSPECT ARMED.

His Arrest May Explain Wholesale Burglaries in Baden.

Through the arrest of Harry Johnson, a negro, at Bittmer avenue and Broadway in Baden, at 1 o'clock Saturday morning, the police hope to unravel the mystery surrounding the recent burglaries in Baden.

Mounted Officers Borden and O'Connor arrested Johnson. They found a revolver and a razor in his pockets. He gave a fictitious address when asked where he lived, and could give no account of himself when taken to the station.

THINK STEWART MUST BE CRAZY

Theory of Police at Work on the Case.

SISTER SAYS HE'S INSANE

SAYS HE HAS BEEN UNBALANCED FOR YEARS.

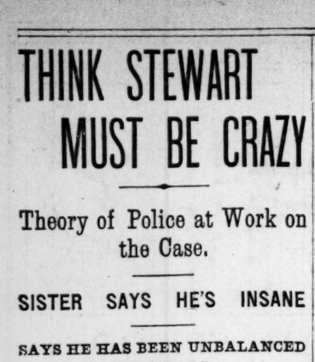

Tells of His Strange Actions and of an Operation That Was Performed Upon Him Some Years Ago.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 20.—Police officials have about come to the conclusion that Harry H. Stewart is insane. It is this insanity they think that caused him to become jealous of his baby and kill it. Their belief is strengthened by the statement of Stewart's sister, Laura, that he has always been more or less crazy.

According to Mrs. Stewart, her husband told her on the night preceding his disappearance that he was worried about her health and suggested that he take the baby for a trip to New York to allow her to recuperate. She laughed at his suggestion, she said. Next morning husband and baby were gone.

The body of the little one was found subsequently by some boys on the shore of Lake Erie, near "Suicide Pier," in front of Lake View Park. The babe's throat had been cut from ear to ear.

From the appearance of the child's body and the little one's nightgown when found, it appears that the murdered babe was thrown into the big trunk sewer that empties into the lake near where the body was picked up. The clothing was yellow, it is stated, and had an odor which the lake water would not have given it.

Stewart's sister is studying medicine in Philadelphia. She received word from her brother's wife that Mr. Wilson had gone to New York to look for Stewart, and the letter ended with the advice that she should go to New York and meet him. No mention was made of the missing babe. She went over on an early train. On the way she looked at a newspaper and saw the grave accusation under which her brother rested. She went direct to the police station.

"If my brother has done this," she said, "it was when he was not in control of his mental faculties. I know this; for years I have felt, and others have known, that he was not entirely sane, but there has never been anything done on his part that would justify holding him for treatment. If there had been, I would have had him cared for long ago. But there has been enough to give me many moments of anxiety and to lead me to the fear that he might at any moment take some step that would compel us to take action. This is no mere theory of mine. Dr. E. M. Davidson, who used to live in Cleveland, but who is now somewhere on the Pacific coast, has had him in medical charge, and we have had this very matter under consideration. He will bear me out in what I have said. Dr. Crile, who is now in Cleveland, I think, has also been connected with him professionally and might throw some light on the case."

"Both my parents are dead. Harry and I attended the public schools of Cleveland when we were children. We left for Denver when he was 15 years of age. One cause for the trouble he has given me has been his frequent disappearance. He would go away as suddenly as he left Cleveland, without any apparent cause, and it would be a long time before I would hear from him. On one occasion he told me that he was going to the Klondike. He left town, and after a long time I heard from him in Galveston, Tex. In 1897 he was quite sick, and the doctors called it a typhoid complication. It was in February. In October of the same year he disappeared and I did not see him again until the next January, when he returned. In February of 1898 he went away again and came back in 1899. It was in that year that an operation was performed. I do not believe that Dr. Crile and the other surgeons connected with his case believe that he was entirely right in his mind at the time.

"His marriage was a love matter through and through. He and his wife were so devoted to each other that the young people of their acquaintance joked them about it. I cannot credit anything that shows a feeling of dislike to the baby. I was at his home both before and after its coming. At the one time he seemed to anticipate its coming with rare pleasure. 'You look out for the finest little one in the world,' said he; and he seemed to be as happy over the baby clothes as the mother herself. I may be wrong in saying all this, but so far as I know about Harry and his life I feel that the truth can only help him."

Stewart's father-in-law, Mr. Wilson, has had little to add to his statement of yesterday. In the light of that statement the detectives incline to the belief that if he killed the baby because he was afraid that it would win the love of the mother from him it was an insane jealousy and not the act of a normal man, no matter how much he might be aroused.

JEWELS STOLEN FROM A TRUNK.

Mrs. McGuire of Cincinnati Has Lost $1000 Worth of Gems.

As was stated in a late edition of Friday's Post-Dispatch, Mrs. C. S. McGuire of Cincinnati, O., is minus $1000 worth of jewelry, which was stolen from her trunk while it was being shipped from St. Louis to Cincinnati.

The theft was reported to the police by William M. Thompson of 5559 Cabanne avenue.

Mrs. McGuire spent the summer with the Thompson family and left Sept. 22. She went from here to Louisville, and as she did not arrive at her home until last Saturday she did not discover her loss until that time. The following articles were in the stolen jewel case:

Lady's gold watch, engraved "Grace N. Best, December 25, 1888"; diamond sunburst, two sword pins with pearl settings, one long watch chain with pearl settings and one short watch chain. There were also several rings and a pair of earrings.

DEATH OF MRS. S. A. BEAUVAIS.

Daughter of Joseph Robidoux, Founder of St. Joseph.

Mrs. Sylvanie A. Beauvais, daughter of Joseph Robidoux, founder of St. Joseph, Mo., died at her home, 1318 Grattan street, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Beauvais was a member of one of the oldest French families in the city. She was 74 years of age, and, with the exception of an interval of 15 years, lived in St. Louis.

In 1847 she married Francis A. Beauvais, who was the oldest jeweler in St. Louis. She was a society belle in the ante-bellum days. Mrs. Beauvais is survived by five daughters and two sons.

The funeral will take place Sunday from St. Vincent's Church, Ninth and Barry streets.

NEGROES TO BE TRAINED FOR THE SALVATION ARMY

BY THE SALVATIONISTS

St. Louis Will Supply the Officers for the New Department That Will Be Established Immediately in the City of Baltimore.

STAFF CAPT. AND MRS. WM. S. WIDGERY.

The Salvation Army is going to establish a department for work among the colored people, and the headquarters' office has sent to St. Louis for officers to take charge of it. Staff Capt. and Mrs. William S. Widgery, general secretaries for the midland division, with headquarters here, have been selected to go to Baltimore and open a training school for negroes in Salvation Army work.

They will start next week, after a rousing farewell meeting Monday night at the barracks, 1412 Franklin avenue. Saturday and Sunday evenings Capt. and Mrs. Widgery will lead the meetings.

The work among the colored people will be a new departure. Heretofore the negroes have not been represented in Salvation Army ranks. Some have attended the meetings, but the need has been felt for a department devoted exclusively to negroes, officered by men and women of that race.

In Baltimore Capt. and Mrs. Widgery will train young colored men and women to go out and organize branches and carry on the army work. A colored branch will be organized in St. Louis as soon as the necessary officers can be trained.

Capt. and Mrs. Widgery are regarded as peculiarly well qualified for the work. They have been engaged in Salvation Army labors in the West Indies for five years, largely among colored people.

Staff Capt. and Mrs. Sammons of Dallas, Tex., will succeed them here.

EXPOSITION CLOSES TODAY

Burlesque Parade, Masked Mardi Gras Gayeties and a Supper Will Be the Final Features.

If to your fund of joy
You'd be a rich contributer,
Attend the Ex. tonight
And view the Veiled Exhibiter.

This is the last day of the Exposition for 1900.

The exhibitors have organized and tonight they will give a burlesque of the recent Veiled Prophet parade.

After the supposed arrival by airship of the Veiled Exhibitor, at 7:45 p. m., via the Thirteenth street entrance, he will march with his immediate attendants to the Olive street entrance. There he will be met with many salaams by a procession of exhibitors and employes. Following this they will march through the Exposition building in this order:

1. Capt. Stevens and the Exposition police.
2. Seymour's First Regiment Band.
3. Exposition officers.
4. Executive committee of exhibitors.
5. Black Horse Cavalry.
6. Veiled exhibitors and attendants.
7. Two vice nations.
8. Exhibitors in costume.

In the Coliseum the queen of the carnival will be crowned, and the evening's frolic of maskers commenced.

There will be a horse race of the black horse cavalry, all of whom ride old, experienced steeds, and prizes will be awarded for the best displays in the procession, as follows: First prize, a house and lot; second, horse; third, gold medal.

Then will follow mardi gras gayeties by the maskers, which will continue until 10 o'clock, when the masked ball of the Grand Exhibitor will open in the west end of the art gallery.

At 12 o'clock supper will be furnished by Faust in the basement.

The Exposition closes today a successful and profitable season, and much of the floating debt, the result of several years' bad business will be paid off.

The usual order of business will be carried out today, and Seymour's band will give the regular concerts.

RUN OVER BY PEDDLER WAGON.

Five-Year-Old Daughter of Michael O'Neil Seriously Hurt.

Maizie, the 5-year-old daughter of Michael O'Niel of 1421 North Jefferson avenue, was run over and seriously injured by a peddler wagon on Sheridan avenue, near Jefferson, Saturday morning. Dr. Holscher, who attended the child, says her left ear is almost severed from her head and that her right foot is badly contused.

After the accident the peddler whipped up his horse and drove away at full speed.

GERMANY AGREES WITH ENGLAND

Chinese Open Door to Be Mutually Maintained.

THEY WANT NO TERRITORY

AGREEMENT CONTEMPLATES A CLOSE ALLIANCE.

Idea Held Out Is That They Will Resist Attempts at Territorial Grabs on the Part of the Other Powers.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Germany and England have formed an alliance to maintain territorial integrity of China and to keep ports open.

The terms of this agreement, which was arrived at Oct. 16 between Lord Salisbury and Count Von Hatzfeldt, German ambassador to England, are officially given out as follows:

"The German government and Her British Majesty's government, being desirous to maintain their interests in China and their rights, under existing treaties, have agreed to observe the following principles, regarding a mutual policy in China:

"Firstly—It is a matter of joint permanent international interest that the ports on the rivers and littoral of China should remain free and open to trade and to every other legitimate form of economic activity for the peoples of all countries without distinction, and the two governments agree on their part to uphold the same for all Chinese territory as far as they can exercise influence.

"Secondly—Both governments agree that they will not, on their part, make use of the present complication to obtain for themselves any territorial advantage in Chinese dominion, and will direct their policy towards maintaining undiminished the territorial condition of the Chinese empire.

"Thirdly—In case of another power making use of the complications in China in order to obtain, under any form whatever, such territorial advantages, the two contracting parties reserve to themselves the right to come to preliminary understanding regarding the eventual step to be taken for the protection of their own interests in China.

"Fourthly—The two governments will communicate this agreement to the other powers interested, especially Austria-Hungary, France Italy, Japan, Russia and the United States, and invite them to accept the principles recorded in it."

CAN'T REMEMBER HIS NAME

Patient at the City Hospital Declares He Was Searching for It When Interfered With by Police.

There is a patient at the City Hospital who has forgotten his first name.

He is being held for observation to see if Dr. Nietert or any of the members of his medical staff can find the missing name, hidden, as it is, in his clouded brain.

"Collins—that's all,' 'answered the patient, when the stereotyped question, "What's your first name?" was put to the patient Saturday morning.

"Don't you know the name given to you by your mother, in your infancy?" he was asked.

"No, I can't remember it. I lost it here in St. Louis and was trying to find it when they brought me here," replied Collins.

At first the hospital doctors believed that Collins was assuming, but they became convinced Saturday morning that he was not. Then they set about to find his name. His pockets were searched in vain for some scrap of paper or letter.

A book containing all the first names known to males was procured. The list was read off, beginning at Abraham and ending with Zachariah, but Collins declared his was not among them.

The hospital records show that Collins is without a home as well as a first name. He declares he lost his home in the usual way and that it used to be at Hopkins, Mo.

Officer Breece found Collins lying on the sidewalk at Broadway and Holly avenue Friday night. The police report states that Collins was not intoxicated, but could give no account of himself.

PEARL COPEMAN IS LOCATED

The Little School Girl Who Was Apparently Abducted Was Taken by Her Father.

Pearl Copeman, 8 years of age, who was seen leaving the Franklin School last Thursday afternoon with a man, has been found.

She and her sister, 11-year-old sister, Goldie, are living with their father, Charles Copeman.

Mr. Copeman called at the Post-Dispatch office Saturday morning and said that it was he who had taken the child from school. He said he thought he was better fitted to take care of the children than his wife, who is the proprietess of a hotel at 1115 Pine street. Copeman says he will see to it that the children will receive a good education and will be well taken care of.

Excursion on the Big Four next Sunday.

WANTED AT CHESTER PRISON

Jonas Washington, the Spry Negro Who Led Chief Desmond Such a Chase, Is a Paroled Convict.

Jonas Washington, the spry negro who gave Chief of Detectives Desmond such a chase across backyard fences several days ago, turns out to be a bigger capture than the sprinting head of the detective department had dreamed.

Jonas has been indentified as John Doyle, alias Diamond, a parole convict of the Chester penitentiary in southern Illinois. A letter to Chief Desmond from Deputy Warden W. C. Dowell of the Chester prison explains that Jonas is a much-wanted man.

He was serving an indeterminate sentence for the crime of burglary and larceny, done in Vermillion County, Ill., when he was paroled, June 30, to Frank Erwin of 416 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis. The warden writes that Doyle corresponded while he was in prison with Mrs. F. Dabney, 1512 Gratiot street, and Joseph Farley, 1408 Clark avenue, St. Louis.

Doyle violated his parole two months ago, when he left East St. Louis without notifying the penitentiary authorities and since that time they have been looking for him. He was captured by Chief Desmond last Tuesday after he led the big sleuth a lively chase through alleys and over fences. The charge against him here is that of stealing from the Shickle, Harrison & Howard Foundry at Twelfth and Gratiot streets.

GLEE CLUB'S PLIGHT

THIRTY YOUNG WOMEN SINGERS DETAINED IN BELLEVILLE.

WRECK TIED UP THE ROAD

Members of the St. Clair County, Ill., Democratic committee had the pleasant task Friday night of caring for 30 of the prettiest young women who can be found in southern Illinois Friday night.

The women were from New Athens, Freeburg and Marissa, are members of a glee club which made things lively at a Democratic meeting at Belleville at which Mr. Alschuler, candidate for governor, was the chief speaker. It was a rousing big meeting and although Mr. Alschuler was the guest of the evening he had to share honors with the Ladies' Glee Club, 30 strong, which rendered all sorts of catchy songs and played popular music.

After the meeting the club proceeded to the Illinois Central Station with scores of other enthusiastic Democrats, only to find there had been a wreck on the road and that the train that was to take them to their homes had traversed another track a good bit away from Belleville.

The women were disappointed, but while they waited for news they gathered together and the old Illinois town was never treated to such a musical entertainment. The songs and music served to keep up the spirits of the other disappointed travelers and it was not until early morning that the members of the party began to realize they were in danger of spending the night with only the high sky for covering. This had the effect of disturbing the entertainers not a little.

"Oh my, what will mama think! I do hope she will not worry."

"Goodness gracious, May, will we have to sleep on boards?"

"I hope Will will not hear of my plight."

Such questions and exclamations as these were heard on all sides.

The situation commenced to look gloomy when a member of the county committee, which had escorted the ladies to the station, pulled himself together and after working his "think tank" for several minutes he sprang to his feet saying, "I have an idea."

He suggested to his colleagues that they make a round of the Belleville hotels and secure rooms for the members of the Glee Club. Busses, buggies, wagons and vehicles of all descriptions were called into service immediately and inside of 30 minutes the committeeman's idea was carried out and it is safe to say that in less than five minutes more every member of the happy band was sound asleep.

The ladies were up Saturday morning in time for a late breakfast. They expect to be able to return sometime Saturday afternoon.

Freight train No. 253 of the Illinois Central, bound for New Orleans, was the cause of all the trouble. It crashed through the steel bridge which spans the Okaw river at New Athens, 30 miles from St. Louis, shortly after 8 o'clock Friday night. The wreck caused a tie-up of the road, and was not cleared away until Saturday morning. A brakeman was injured in the wreck.

FOUND WITH BIBLE IN HAHD

Mathew Vogelsbacher Was Hiding Out to Prevent His Being Sent to the Poorhouse.

Mathew Vogelsbacher, aged 70, of 3517 Natural Bridge road, who escaped from the City Dispensary Thursday, was found Friday afternoon hiding in an old shed in the rear of 2735 Gravois avenue, with an open Bible in his hands.

Mr. Vogelsbacher left the dispensary unnoticed, while waiting for an ambulance to convey him to the Poorhouse.

For some time he had been cared for by a daughter-in-law, but she met with an accident and was forced to have him sent to the poorhouse. She took him to the dispensary Thursday, had the necessary commitment papers made out and bade him good-by.

When the health commissioner's clerk called out the names of those who were to go in the ambulance, it was discovered that Vogelsbacher was missing.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Joseph W. Bailey, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate from Texas, is at the Planters' Hotel. He is on a speechmaking tour of the central West under the auspices of the national committee. He has made from one to three addresses every day for two weeks. He says the indications, so far as he has observed them, point to Mr. Bryan's election.

Capt. S. M. Smith of the commissary department of the British army is again in St. Louis to purchase mules and animal provisions for his government.

United States Senator James H. Berry of Bentonville, Ark., is registered at the Planters' Hotel. He feels confident of Bryan's election.

"I Was Greatly Troubled With a Cold Which Settled on My Lungs and Left Me With Catarrh."

THEN HE TRIED PERUNA.

"It Has Come Fully Up to My Expectations, Completely Curing My Catarrh—Leaving No Trace of It."

(Special News From Chicago, Ill.)

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 18.—Hon. E. A. W. Johnson, Justice of the Peace, writes from 607 Sheffield avenue, Chicago, Ill., the following:

"I was greatly troubled with a cold which settled on my lungs and left me with a disagreeable catarrh. As your medicine has come to my notice several times, I determined to see what it would do for me. It has come fully up to my expectations, completely curing my catarrh—leaving no trace of it. E. A. W. JOHNSON."

Nearly all the chronic ailments to which the human family is liable, either begin or end with catarrh, or else are in some degree complicated by catarrh.

If this fact were better understood by the medical profession than it is today, it would save a great amount of anxiety and suffering, and prevent numberless deaths.

Catarrh is catarrh wherever located. Catarrh is essentially the same everywhere.

HON. E. A. W. JOHNSON, Chicago, Ill.

The remedy that will cure catarrh in one situation will cure it in all situations.

It does not require one remedy to cure catarrh of the head, and another to cure catarrh of the lungs, and still another to cure catarrh of the stomach, and another to cure catarrh of the kidneys.

A remedy that will cure catarrh anywhere will cure catarrh everywhere.

The phrase that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located has become almost an axiom throughout the civilized world.

PICKED UP LOST MONEY.

Though Not Recovered, a Negro Is Charged With Larceny.

Crockett Elliott and Herman Busch of the Christian Orphans' Home, Aubert and Suburban tracks, were sent by Matron Mattie Williamson to a bakery near the institution Friday to get a check for $20 cashed.

The boys secured the money and were returning to the home, whe the envelope containing the money dropped from Perkins' pocket.

He looked around just in time to see Marshal Perkins, colored, picking up the money.

Officer Waite was notified and arrested Perkins. The money was not found.

A warrant charging Perkins with petit larceny was issued Saturday.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

The cases involving the constitutional status of Porto Rico and the Philippines have been advanced on the docket and will come before the Supreme Court Nov. 12.

The decision of the court will be looked for by all thinking citizens with as much interest as the decision of the voters on election day.

The judgment will profoundly affect the policy of the government and perhaps fix its character once for all. Whichever way the court decides, the event will be heavy with momentous consequences.

Republicans will not relish the admission of the Philippines as a part of the United States under the constitution. Certainly their policy will have to be readapted to the new view. Will they think it worth while to hold the archipelago?

The grandjury ought to bear in mind that a public question to which it can find the answer is yet unanswered. It is an important question deeply concerning the moral welfare of the youth of St. Louis and the purity of the local government. It involves a violation of law and the commission of felony. The question is, "Who gets the gambling rake-off?"

USE OF THE BALLOT.

In advising women how to secure the ballot Miss Jane Addams, the well-known philanthropist, said that it could be done by taking up the moral side of the question. For instance, "if you can show the women of this land that the child labor evil can be mitigated only by the votes of women you will enlist every woman in the country."

This is manifestly true in regard to women. But why is it not equally true in regard to men? Why cannot men be brought to look upon the ballot as the powerful means to accomplish a moral end or undo a grievous wrong, instead of as a means to put some one in office?

John Ruskin was apt to ridicule modern boasting as to rapid transit and telegraphic communications. He said that we could get from one place to another more easily than the ancients, with nothing to do when we got there. And we could send messages by lightning, but too often the message was not worth sending.

Our misuse of the ballot is open to the same criticism. Elections degenerate into struggles to get men into office, without reference to the moral work such men may be expected to do.

It is now found that export figures are padded. Anything for politics.

JOHN PADDOCK, STICKER.

In Friday's Post-Dispatch the story was told of how John Paddock, night watchman, had held one job for 40 years and accumulated a small fortune in that time.

Mr. Paddock's name is suggestive. A paddock is a small field, near the farm house, where horses are kept. Mr. Paddock has limited himself to a small field and a homely one. He has lived in the same block, married a wife who lived in that block, and gone over the same route to the same work for over a generation's life-time.

It is a good thing that Mr. Paddock is happy as a sticker. He deserves the competence he has acquired. His example in human adhesiveness is commended to the young man who cannot hold a job because he is too restless.

St. Louis has maintained a great Exposition for seventeen years. What may she not do with an opportunity to create a grand international exposition in 1903?

ARIZONA.

The fact that the population of Arizona has increased 104.9 per cent in ten years is significant. It points to a great future, under the growing system of irrigation, which is turning much of the territory into a garden of Eden.

Arizona produces oranges, figs, almonds, pomegranates and other semitropica' fruits. It has the largest fig orchard in the United States, and in every portion of the territory where irrigation has been introduced the desert has been made to blossom and bear abundantly.

This part of the great Southwest, says the author of "The Conquest of Arid America," bears a striking resemblance to the land of Egypt, except that the irrigation is not natural, but must be forced.

With the methods now known and which are constantly being improved, Arizona will doubtless become one of the most favored spots in the United States, instead of being, as she once was, the most dangerous part of the "great American desert."

The advance in linseed oil puts the price up beyond anything before known since the industry began. Where 35-cent oil was expected, 70-cent oil has come. There is no height to which prices may not go in any industry that is controlled by one company. Only when prices are so extortionate as to seriously check consumption can they be expected to be lowered.

PROFESSORIAL COMEDY.

A curious person named Thatcher is professor of medieval history in Chicago University.

Prof. Thatcher's knowledge of his subject is profound and unquestioned, but his lectures are unintelligible to the co-eds because they fall from his lips riddled with slang. He tells the story of the death of William Rufus in this chaste fashion: "Some whale of a knight had a scrap with his attendant, got a drop on the king and put him out of the ring." The professor describes a king or a pope of those days as "the whole thing." A king who held himself superior to his fellow kings had a "swelled head." A king could "do any old thing" in those garish times; one sovereign who was especially prosperous "had no kick coming."

When this singular person addresses a member of the class it does does not occur to him to use her name. He comes to the point in proud joyous fashion thus: "Hi there," or "you there." If he says "You there Liz," or "Bet," the young lady is honored and answers up prompt like.

The co-eds don't like it. They don't feel they have time to translate the language of the gutters into English. Besides they think the language of the slums is not nice. So they have petitioned the professor to speak English.

Chicago University is making a record in professorial comedy? What next? Will mathematics be taught to ragtime and physiology through the couchee-couchee?

The Post-Dispatch voices an overwhelming public sentiment when it reminds the Municipal Assembly that the only conditions upon which further street railway franchise legislation will be tolerated are:

No street-car tracks through Forest Park.

No franchise grant without adequate compensation and guarantees of protection for public interests.

THE OLD EXILE

"I have loved righteousness and hated inquity; therefore I die in exile."

The mournful words of the great pope might well have been repeated by old Paul Kruger as he stepped aboard the Dutch man-of-war in the harbor of Lourenzo Marquez, and bade a last farewell to his fatherland.

For the greater part of his life Kruger has served his people faithfully and well. He helped them clear the forests in the home selected after their last migration. He took an important part in the early public affairs of the country and was an important factor in organizing the state and building up defenses of the freedom they loved so well. Kruger is a worthy descendant of the burghers who fought freedom's battle under William the Silent.

Beaten and broken though he is, his people in South Africa and his kinsmen in Holland may well be proud of him as one of their national heroes whose fame will always be an inspiration of patriotism.

The honors of the war all belong to Kruger and the Boers. They are despoiled of their inheritance and he is a wanderer in his old age. He dies in exile, but he may be assured of a home in the heart of every lover of freedom and righteousness.

The "general and disastrous drouth" predicted for the United States in 1900 has failed to materialize. It was to have spread eastward from the Pacific slope. People who were disturbed by this prediction will not in future put much faith in long-range weather prophecies.

It is not remarkable that Judge Gray of Delaware, who was a member of the commission that negotiated peace with Spain, is announced as against "criminal aggression." When he was on the commission he advocated the independence of the Philippines.

Senator Hanna asks who will withdraw the United States from the firing line of nations where the Republican party has put it. It might be a good idea for some one to pull them back, as the firing line is where the casualties occur.

Every political party in Chicago has declared for municipal ownership of street railways. The rousing of the people against the attempted theft of Chicago's streets is likely to prove to have been a very good thing for Chicago.

"The Republicans looted the school fund," says Dockery. "The Democrats have looted the school fund," says Flory. But the schools of Missouri are booming, and we are constantly building up our school system.

The canteen coming up for discussion in religious bodies this year has done much to dissipate apathy. Nearly all the members of religious societies have some views on alcohol, and some are carrying a good deal of politics.

A World Power.

Hon. Boyd Winchester in the Courier-Journal.

When, in the result of the Revolutionary war the United States made good the great declaration of July 4, 1776, they instantly became the greatest of world powers. Since 1812 their power has kept all Europe from South America, Mexico and the islands of the seas, except so far as they were there before. For seventy-five years they have stood as the guardian of a whole hemisphere, and the whole world has obeyed their command. "Not one step further on this hemisphere." Again, up to the time of the present imperialistic infatuation, the United States were the greatest "world power" in their beneficent influence, and no other nation had done so much to inspire mankind with hope and energy, and to improve the condition of the human race.

Congress and the Boers.

From the Washington Post.

We do not recall exactly what congress did for the Boers. We have a vague general idea that it sternly suppressed its emotions, and covered an aching heart with the cloak of silent tortures. In the past, American congresses have expressed their sympathy with peoples struggling against despotic monarchies for the privilege of self-government—the same privileges that we ourselves enjoy. This congress has adopted a more subtle, if less effective, policy. It has recognized the heroic devotion of the Boers with sealed lips, but, of course, with a bleeding heart. We recall no more touching suggestion of national feeling. It reminds us of the affectionate and impulsive demonstration which England presented to us during the Civil war.

The World's Fair Amendments.

From the Kansas City Star.

St. Louis may rightfully expect a unanimous vote in Kansas City for these amendments. The Fair will be the greatest modern event in the State of Missouri. If it is to be held, the Fair itself must not only fully be equal in grandeur, to the dignity, wealth and resources of Missouri, but the state exhibit, in particular, ought to be fine enough to require the expenditure of not less than a million dollars.

So truth if thou the true wouldst reap,
Who sows the false shall reap the vain;
Erect and sound thy conscience keep,
From hollow words and deeds refrain.

Sow peace and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest-home of light.

SOCIAL PHILOSOPHY.

You can build a little lack of attention into an imaginary wrong if you want to.

Take out a life insurance policy and leave a full dinner pail for your wife's next husband.

When a baby arrives in this world, a book should come with it, giving instructions for its management.

The men really don't know anything about the terrors of a mother-in-law; it is the daughter-in-law who is best posted.

There should be less worrying about what the "unseen has in store," and more care of the health to be able to do the work it brings to everyone.

Why do men go into saloons and insist on buying each other whisky? They never go into dry goods stores and insist on buying socks for each other.

BRICK CODE FLIRTATION.

A Yorkshire girl asks for a simple code of flirtation, saying that she is familiar with the fan and handkerchief system, and wants to know if there is no other.

Here is a simple code—the brickbat flirtation:

Picking up a brick from street—I am waiting for you.

Carrying brick in right hand—I am watching you.

Carrying brick in left hand—I feel secure.

Biting corner of brick—I love you.

Rubbing brick on nose—Write to me.

Wrapping brick in handkerchief—I doubt you.

Throwing brick through window—Beware of the neighbors.

Balancing brick on chin—We are watched.

Striking back of head with brick—I am married.

Scratching ear with brick—Don't speak to me.

Throwing brick at stranger's head—I want to make an impression.

Putting brick in pocket—We are safe.

This code has the advantage of being certain to attract attention, and bricks are always to be found, even when your fan is at home.—Answers.

THE NEWEST BOOKS.

AFTER a silence of five years James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier Poet," has published a new book of verse. It is entitled "Home Folks," and only a few of the poems are in dialect. The first one in the book, which has the same title as the volume, contains these verses:

Home Folks! Well, that-air name, to me,
Sounds jis the same as poetry—
That is, of poetry is jis
As sweet as I've hearn tell it is!

Home Folks—they're jis the same as kin—
All-brung up, same as we have been,
Without no overpowerin' sense
Of their oncommon consequence!

Home Folks has crops to plant and plough,
Er lives in town and keeps a cow;
But whether country-jakes er town,
They know when eggs is up er down!

Oh, Home Folks, you're the best of all
'At ranges this terestchul ball—
But north er south er east or west,
It's home is where you're at your best.

Home Folks—at home—I know o' one
Old feller now 'at hain't got none—
Invite him—he may hold back some—
But you invite him, and he'll come.

A poem in negro dialect, entitled "Shortnin' Bread Song," shows that Mr. Riley is as skilled in that line as in handling the homely Indiana dialect. Here are two verses of the song:

I hangs a hoss-shoe ovah my head,
An' I keeps a' ole sleve under de bed,
So, quinchiquently, I sleep sound.
Wid no ole witches pester'n' round.

I jine de chu'ch las' Chuesday night.
But when Sis Jane ain't treat me right
I 'low her chu'ch ain' none o mine.
So I 'nounce to all I done on-jine.

Riley sings as sweetly as ever in these latest songs. There is more of the poet himself in this volume than in any of his other works.

"THE IMAGE BREAKERS," by Gertrude Dix, is a book of unusual interest, both as a romance and for the manner in which it deals with sex and social problems. Its author is said to have had some experience with the sphere of Socialist life in England, among "advanced" persons, such as Grant Allen depicts in "The Woman Who Did" and his other "Hill Top" novels. This field of wealth and resources of Missouri, but the state exhibit, in particular, ought to be fine enough to require the expenditure of not less than a million dollars. thought and effort produces some remarkable characters, which Gertrude Dix has used to make a powerful emotional story. It opens with a picture of the stirring life among Socialist workers, but the book is chiefly devoted to tracing the effect upon two women of the breaking with conventional ideas and becoming independent. In following this line, the romance becomes a picture of varied emotions caused by the conflict between love and idealism. In the case of one of the heroines all ends well, but the life of the other is wrecked. It is evidently the author's belief that "image breaking" is a dangerous occupation, especially for women. It is true that "all parts away for the progress of souls," but only that fanatic can afford to force the process of parting. In the case of the average woman, Cupid and custom are still forces to be reckoned with. (New York: Herbert H. Stone & Co.)

MRS. MARY DE MANKOWSKI of Houston, Tex., has made what appears to be an excellent translation into English of Julian Jasiencyck's story, "Ten Years of Cossack Slavery." In her preface, Mrs. Mankowski says:

"The aim of this book is to acquaint Americans with the horrors and corruption of the Russian officials and the relations which existed in Black Russia; also with the hardships and imprisonments of a certain Polish nobleman and thousands of others who were banished to Siberia in the year 1847 for political transgressions, and who suffered tortures almost indescribable in that land of eternal ice and snow, where the whizzing of the knout is heard continually, and where the officials flog unmercifully men, women and children who dare to speak or think about the government."

The incidents of the narrative form a very dark picture, which one hopes is not true of the present day, though the actions of Russian soldiers in Northern China make this possible. The story runs smoothly, like a narration of personal experiences. The book is published by the Abbey Press of New York.

Literary Notes.

The original copy of Lincoln's notebook, which is to be published in fac-simille by McClure, Phillips & Co. this fall, has been purchased by Col. William H. Lambert of Philadelphia. Col. Lambert is said to have the finest collection of Lincolniana in existence.

Maurice Hewlett's next novel, "Richard Yea and Nay," is to be published in a few weeks by the Macmillan company. The subject of the story will be the life, adventures, imprisonment and death of Richard, the Lion Hearted. The character of the narrative will be somewhat on the lines of a chanson de geste.

B. K. Benson is a new writer of fiction whose first novel, "Who Goes There?" will be published immediately by the Macmillan company. The two main features of the hero's personal career are his love for the daughter of his former tutor and the mental affliction of "amnesia"—the malady of forgetting his past identity—under which he suffers.

Mr. William Dean Howells, the distinguished novelist and critic, is to be one of the literary advisers to the reorganized house of Harper & Bros. He will revive the department of the "Easy Chair," in Harper's Magazine, made famous by George William Curtis, will also contribute literary affairs to the North American Review. By special arrangement Harper & Bros. have secured all rights to all of Mr. Howell's future works.

The first collection of Edwin Markham's verses since the publication of "The Man With the Hoe" will be brought out this month by McClure, Phillips & Co. under the title of "The Sower and Other Poems." The new poems are hopeful in their view of labor, quite in contrast to the pessimism which some critics read in "The Man With the Hoe." It is Mr. Markham's plan to write a series of poems expressing the dignity of labor and the hopefulness of the worker and his work. The present volume is the first product of that idea.

POST-DISPATCH SERIES OF FAMOUS SHORT STORIES

AN EQUESTRIAN EPISODE.

From the Pickwick Papers

MR. PICKWICK found that his three companions had risen and were waiting his arrival to commence breakfast, which was ready laid in tempting display. They sat down to the meal; and broiled ham, eggs, tea, coffee, and sundries, began to disappear with a rapidity which at once bore testimony to the excellence of the fare, and the appetites of its consumers.

"Now, about Manor Farm," said Mr. Pickwick. "How shall we go?"

"We had better consult the waiter, perhaps," said Mr. Tupman, and the waiter was summoned accordingly.

"Dingley Dell, gentlemen—15 miles, gentlemen—cross road—post-chaise, sir?"

"Post-chaise won't hold more than two," said Mr. Pickwick.

"True, sir—beg your pardon, sir. Very nice four-wheel chaise, sir—seat for two behind—one in front for the gentleman that drives—oh! beg your pardon, sir—that'll only hold three.'

"What's to be done?" said Mr. Snodgrass.

"Perhaps one of the gentlemen like to ride, sir" suggested the waiter, looking toward Mr. Winkle; "very good saddle horses, sir—any of Mr. Wardle's men coming to Rochester bring 'em back, sir."

"The very thing," said Mr. Pickwick. "Winkle, will you go on horseback?"

Now Mr. Winkle did entertain considerable misgivings in the very lowest recesses of his own heart, relative to his equestrian skill; but, as he would not have them even suspected on any account, he at once replied with great hardihood, "Certainly. I should enjoy it, of all things."

Mr. Winkle had rushed upon his fate; there was no recourse. "Let them be at the door by 11," said Mr. Pickwick.

"Very well, sir," replied the waiter.

The waiter retired; the breakfast concluded, and the travelers ascended to their respective bedrooms, to prepare a change of clothing to take with them on their approaching expedition.

Mr. Pickwick had made his preliminary arrangements, and was looking over the coffee room blinds at the passengers in the street, when the waiter entered, and announced that the chaise was ready—an announcement which the vehicle itself confirmed, by forthwith appearing before the coffee room blinds aforesaid.

It was a curious little green box on four wheels, with a low place like a wine bin for two behind, and an elevated perch for one in front, drawn by an immense brown horse, displaying great symmetry of bone. A hostler stood near, holding by the bridle another immense horse—apparently a near relative of the animal in the chaise—ready saddled for Mr. Winkle.

"Bless my soul!" said Mr. Pickwick, as they stood upon the pavement while the coats were being put in. "Bless my soul! who's to drive? I never thought of that."

"Oh!" you, of course," said Mr. Tupman.

"Of course," said Mr. Snodgrass.

"I!" exclaimed Mr. Pickwick.

"Not the slightest fear, sir," interposed the hostler. "Warrant him quiet, sir, a hinfant in arms might drive 'um."

"He don't shy, does he?" inquired Mr. Pickwick.

"Shy, sir?—he wouldn't shy if he was to meet a vaggin load of monkeys, with their tails burnt off."

The last recommendation was indisputable. Mr. Tupman and Mr. Snodgrass got into the bin; Mr. Pickwick ascended to his perch, and desposited his feet on a floor-clothed shelf, erected beneath it, for that purpose.

"Now, shiny Villiam," said the hostler to the deputy hostler, "give the gen'lm'n the ribbins." "Shiny Villiam"—so called, probably, from his sleek hair and oily countenance—placed the reins in Mr. Pickwick's left hand; and the upper hostler thrust a whip into his right.

"Wo—o!" cried Mr. Pickwick, as the tall quadruped evinced a decided inclination to back into the coffee room window.

"Wo—o!" echoed Mr. Tupman and Mr. Snodgrass from the bin.

"Only his playfulness, gen'lm'n," said the head hostler, encouragingly; "jist kitch hold on him, Villiam." The deputy restrained the animal's impetuosity and the principal ran to assist Mr. Winkle in mounting.

"T'other side, sir, if you please."

"Blowed if the gen'lm'n won't a-gettin' up on the wrong side," whispered a grinning nostboy, to the inexpressibly gratified waiter.

Mr. Winkle, thus instructed, climbed into his saddle, with about as much difficulty as he would have experienced in getting up the side of a first-rate man-of-war.

"All right?" inquired Mr. Pickwick, with an inward presentiment that it was all wrong.

"All right," replied Mr. Winkle faintly.

"Let 'em go," cried the hostler—"hold him in, sir," and away went the chaise, and the saddle horse, with Mr. Pickwick on the box of the one and Mr. Winkle on the back of the other, to the delight and gratification of the whole inn yard.

"What makes him go sideways?" said Mr. Snodgrass in the bin, to Mr. Winkle in the saddle.

"I can't imagine," replied Mr. Winkle. His horse was drifting up the street in the most mysterious manner—side first, with his head towards one side of the way and his tail towards the other.

Mr. Pickwick had no leisure to observe either this or any other particular, the whole of his faculties being concentrated in the management of the animal attached to the chaise, who displayed various peculiarities, highly interesting to a bystander, but by no means equally amusing to anyone seated behind him. Besides constantly jerking his head up, in a very unpleasant and uncomfortable manner, and tugging at the reins to an extent which rendered it a matter of great difficulty for Mr. Pickwick to hold them, he had a singular propensity for darting suddenly every now and then to the side of the road, then stopping short, and then rushing forward for some minutes, at a speed which it was wholly impossible to control.

"What can he mean by this?" said Mr. Snodgrass, when the horse had executed this maneuver for the twentieth time.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Tupman; "it looks very like shying, don't it?" Mr. Snodgrass was about to reply, when he was interrupted by a shout from Mr. Pickwick.

"Woo," said that gentleman, "I have dropped my whip."

"Winkle," cried Mr. Snodgrass, as the equestrian came came trotting up on the tall horse, with his hat over his ears; and shaking all lover, as if he would shake to pieces, with the violence of the exercise. "Pick up the whip, there's a good fellow." Mr. Winkle pulled at the bridle of the tall horse till he was black in the face; and having at length succeeded in stopping him, dismounted, handed the whip to Mr. Pickwick, and grasping the reins, prepared to remount.

Now, whether the tall horse, in the natural playfulness of his disposition, was desirous of having a little innocent recreation with Mr. Winkle, or whether it occurred to him that he could perform the journey as much to his own satisfaction without a rider as with one, are points upon which we can arrive at no definite and distinct conclusion. By whatever motives the animal was actuated, certain it is that Mr. Winkle had no sooner touched the reins than he slipped them over his head and darted backward to their full length.

"Poor fellow," said Mr. Winkle, soothingly—"poor fellow—good old horse." The "poor fellow" was proof against flattery: the more Mr. Winkle tried to get nearer him the more he sidled away; and, notwithstanding all kinds of coaxing and wheedling, there were Mr. Winkle and the good old horse going round and round each other for 10 minutes; at the end of which time each was at precisely the same distance from the other as when they first commenced—an unsatisfactory sort of thing under any circumstances, but particularly so in a lonely road, where no assistance can be procured.

"What am I to do?" shouted Mr. Winkle, after the dodging had been prolonged for a considerable time. "What am I to do?" I can't get on him!"

"You had better lead him till we come to a turnpike," replied Mr. Pickwick from the chaise.

"But he won't come," roared Mr. Winkle. "Do come and hold him."

Mr. Pickwick was the impersonation of kindness and humanity; he threw the reins on the horse's back, and having descended from his seat, carefully drew the chaise into the hedge, lest anything should come along the road, and stepped back to the assistance of his distressed companion, leaving Mr. Tupman and Mr. Snodgrass in the vehicle.

The horse no sooner beheld Mr. Pickwick advancing towards him with the chaise whip in his hand than he exchanged the rotary motion in which he had previously indulged for a retrograde movement of so very determined a character that it at once drew Mr. Winkle, who was still at the end of the bridle, at a rather quicker rate than fast walking, in the direction from which they had just come. Mr. Pickwick ran to his assistance, but the faster Mr. Pickwick ran forward the faster the horse ran backward.

There was a great scraping of feet and kicking up of the dust; and at last Mr. Winkle, his arms being nearly pulled out of their sockets, fairly let go his hold. The horse paused, stared, shook his head, turned round, and quietly trotted home to Rochester, leaving Mr. Winkle and Mr. Pickwick gazing on each other with countenances of blank dismay. A rattling noise at a little distance attracted their attention. They looked up.

"Bless my soul!" exclaimed the agonized Mr. Pickwick, "there's the other horse running away!"

It was but too true. The animal was startled by the noise, and the reins were on his back. The result may be guessed. He tore off with the four-wheeled chaise behind him, and Mr. Tupman and Mr. Snodgrass in the four-wheeled chaise. The heat was a short one. Mr. Tupman threw himself into the hedge, Mr. Snodgrass followed his example, the horse dashed the four-wheeled chaise against a wooden bridge, separated the wheels from the body, and the bin from the perch; and finally stood stock still to gaze upon the ruin he had made.

The first care of the two unspilt friends was to extricate their unfortunate companions from their bed of quickset—a process which gave them the unspeakable satisfaction of discovering that they had sustained no injury, beyond sundry rents in their garments, and various lacerations from the brambles. The next thing to be done was to unharness the horse. This complicated process having been effected, the party walked slowly forward, leading the horse among them, and abandoning the chaise to its fate.

An hour's walking brought the travelers to a little roadside public house, with two elm trees, a horse trough and a sign post in front; one or two deformed hay ricks behind, a kitchen garden at the side, and rotten sheds and moldering outhouses jumbled in strange confusion, all about it. A red-headed man was working in the garden, and to him Mr. Pickwick called lustily—"Hallo there!"

The red-headed man raised his body, shaded his eyes with his hand, and stared long and coolly at Mr. Pickwick and his companions.

"Hallo there!" repeated Mr. Pickwick.

"Hallo!" was the red-headed man's reply.

"How far is it to Dingley Dell?"

"Better er seven mile."

"Is it a good road?"

"No, 'taint." Having uttered this brief reply, and apparently satisfied himself with another scrutiny, the red-headed man resumed his work.

"We want to put this horse up here," said Mr. Pickwick; "I suppose we can, can't we?"

"Want to put that ere horse up, do ee?" repeated the red-headed man, leaning on his spade.

"Of course," replied Mr. Pickwick, who had by this time advanced, horse in hand, to the garden rails.

"Missus"—roared the man with the red head, emerging from the garden, and looking very hard at the horse—"Missus."

A tall, bony woman—straight all the way down—in a coarse blue pelisse, with the waist an inch or two below her armpits, responded to the call.

"Can we put this horse up here, my good woman?" said Mr. Tupman, advancing, and speaking in his most seductive tones. The woman looked very hard at the whole party, and the red-headed man whispered something in her ear.

"No," replied the woman, after a little consideration, "I'm afeerd on it."

"Afraid!" exclaimed Mr. Pickwick, "what's the woman afraid of?"

"It got us in trouble last time," said the women, turning into the house; "I woan't have nothin' to say to 'un."

"Most extraordinary thing I ever met with in my life," said the astonished Mr. Pickwick.

"I—I—really believe," whispered Mr. Winkle, as his friends gathered round him, "that they think we have come by this horse in some dishonest manner."

"What!" exclaimed Mr. Pickwick, in a storm of indignation. Mr. Winkle modestly repeated his suggestion.

"Hallo, you fellow!" said the angry Mr. Pickwick. "Do you think we stole this horse?"

"I'm sure ye did," replied the red-headed man, with a grin which agitated his countenance from one auricular organ to the other. Saying which, he turned into the house and banged the door after him.

"It's like a dream," ejaculated Mr. Pickwick—"a hideous dream. The idea of a man's walking about all day with a dreadful horse that he can't get rid of!" The depressed Pickwickians turned moodily away, with the tall quadruped, for which they all felt the most unmitigated disgust, following slowly at their heels.

It was late in the afternoon when the four friends and their four-footed companion turned into the lane leading to Manor Farm, and even when they were so near their place of destination the pleasure they would otherwise have experienced was materially damped as they reflected on the singularity of their appearance and the absurdity of their situation. Torn clothes, lacerated faces, dusty shoes, exhausted looks, and, above all, the horse. Oh, how Mr. Pickwick cursed that horse; he had eyed the noble animal from time to time with looks expressive of hatred and revenge; more than once he had calculated the probable amount of the expense he would incur by cutting his throat; and now the temptation to destroy him or to cast him loose upon the world rushed upon his mind with tenfold force. He was roused from a meditation on these dire imaginings by the sudden appearance of two figures at a turn of the lane. It was Mr. Wardle and his faithful attendant, the fat boy.

"Why, where have you been?" said the hospitable old gentleman. "I've been waiting for you all day. Well, you do look tired. What! Scratches! Not hurt, I hope—eh? Well, I am glad to hear that—very. So you've been spilt, eh? Never mind. Common accident in these parts. Joe—he's asleep again!—Joe, take that horse from the gentleman and lead it into the stable."

The fat boy sauntered heavily behind them with the animal; and the old gentleman condoling with his guests in homely phrase, on so much of the day's adventures as they thought proper to communicate, led the way to the kitchen.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

FOOTBALL GALORE

ST. LOUIS WILL HAVE ALL KINDS SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

C. B. C. AND ROLLA'S TEAM

Their Game at the College Campus Promises Rare Sport, as Does the Manual-Smith Game.

St. Louis will furnish football for the multitudes today. Five of its principal teams play at home, one plays at Alton and one possibly at Lebanon, Ill.—for it is rumored that the Amalekites of Washington University will make a descent upon that Judean town.

The quality of the sport, too, should be excellent, for the practice of all the elevens for the past two weeks has been excellent, and an appreciative public will probably turn out in force to enjoy the contests.

The C. B. C.-Rolla game will run a close race with the interscholastic contest between Smith and Manual for honors of attendance, with chances for a larger number favoring the former, for a crowd of rooters from the School of Mines is expected to arrive this morning to cheer their team on to victory. Smith and Manual, however, have a large following.

Bland and his team of miners arrived Friday night, and are quartered at the St. James Hotel. They do not appear to be the giants that the Marion Sims men reported them as being. Their team average is about 157 pounds, which is some eight pounds per man lighter than C. B. C.

In spite of this deficiency they will be a hard crowd to defeat. The Marion-Sims' eleven is a pretty hard proposition for any of the local teams and the work of Bland's men against it, both in the offense and defense was excellent, its aggressive work being really superior to that of the "doctors."

What C. B. C. can do is practically an unknown quantity, their game with the Carltons last Saturday furnishing the only line, and this is not to be trusted for the college men did not try. They have the weight, and they have had good practice, though some of the men are a trifle slow still.

Thre line-up will be as follows:

C. B. C.	Positions.	Rolla.
Doherty	Right end	Bunle
McGrail	Right tackle	Keenan
Jackson	Right guard	Hale
Arthure	Center	Kerr
O'Donohue	Left guard	Wilds
Tanner	Left tackle	Prugh
Longinotti or McKee	Left end	Perrier
A. Broekmeyer	Quarterback	Lewis
Riorden	Right halfback	Reid
Hickey	Left halfback	Koeberlin
Cuningham	Fullback	Hannick

Smith Academy's team is badly broken up, but it will put an eleven in the game that will do creditably against the Manual men. Smith is game and dies hard. Her adherents are certain that she has not abandoned hopes of the pennant, and that the men of the hammer and tongs, will have the fight of their lives Saturday afternoon. Smith's line-up has not been settled and will not be until the men are on the field. Manual will send to the firing line practically the team that opposed St. Louis University, much improved however, by hard practice.

The High School team goes to Alton to meet W. M. A. It is hoped that it will return from its trip abroad in a less dismantled condition than it did from its previous experience at Lebanon. The local team is not so confident of victory as it was several weeks ago. That 17 to 0 against the Cabanne Club sticks in their thorax and refuses to be swallowed without several gulps of anxiety.

The game will probably afford the prettiest contest of the season, as High School, for all the battering McKendree gave it and despite the absence of Erskine from right end, is a really strong eleven. Its showing against Marion-Sims and McKendree College would do credit to an eleven of higher pretensions.

The team has practiced long and faithfully, and Capt. More has an eleven that will take a world of beating.

St. Louis University plays Cabanne Club at Athletic Park, and Marion-Sims is scheduled to meet the Carletons at Handlan Park. Both games are in the nature of practice games, but though they have little bearing on any local championship race, should prove interesting contests.

If Washington is sufficiently reorganized to meet its engagement with McKendree, the town of Lebanon will be visited by a "hot time." McKendree College has the earnest support of the inhabitants of the village, and its football team seldom succumbs on its own grounds, until the last devices of the police and fire departments have been exhausted. At that Washington should win.

Big Mac's Baby Girl.

Mr. Mike McDermott, the big ex-Louisville pitcher who is now playing with the Globes, was presented with a lovely baby girl last Wednesday evening. Both mother and daughter are doing well. Mike feels proud and it twice as big a man now as he was before.

"Well, I say that the very best of men don't know the difference between their souls and their stomachs, and they fancy that they are a-wrestling with their doubts when really it is their dinners they're a-wrestling with.

"Take my old man. A kinder husband never drew breath; yet so sure as he touches a bit of pork he begins to worry hisself about the doctrine of Election, till I say, "I'd be ashamed to go troubling the minister with my doubts when an Ayer's Pill would set things straight again."

FINE SHOW HORSES COMING

Manager Gentry Returns From Louisville With Assurances of Abundant Patronage of Show.

John R. Gentry, manager of the Horse Show, returned Saturday morning from Louisville, where he went to complete arrangements for the horses shown there this week to be brought here after the Kansas City show, which will be held next week.

"The horsemen all want to come to St. Louis," said Mr. Gentry to the Post-Dispatch." They are sure of a good time socially, and they know that the accommodations for their horses are better than they are in any other city. In some places, you know, the horses are not stabled in the same building the show is held in, and this puts the exhibitors to a great deal of inconvenience. We are going to have the best show this year ever held in the West, and if we don't make the New Yorkers open their eyes I will be very much surprised."

CITY HALL POLICE COURT

When the case of Jacob Hahl, charged with disturbing the peace of his wife, Lottie, was called in the City Hall Police Court Saturday morning, the prisoner came forward with a perturbed glance about the court in search of his better half.

That estimable lady failing to answer the summons, Jacob seemed relieved as he walked to the witness stand. Prisoners always enter court with the perplexed glance emanating from indecision over which of the several stories they have rehearsed at night they will relate to the court.

If these doubts assailed Jacob, the absence of Mrs. H. dispelled them. He told his story with unctuousness, without any evidence of familiarity with the works of the lamented Baron Munchausen.

Jacob is a teamster. He has been married 10 years and has five children. He didn't offer this statement as evidence of his marital happiness, but as a mere fact from which the court could draw its own inference.

In all those ten years Jacob thought he had maintained the minimum of drunkenness for a teamster with five children to frock and shoe and Mrs. H. to keep in good humor. Add to this Jacob had several good friends convivially inclined, and particularly a well-to-do relative in whom the children might have expectations in case of an accident.

It was this same convivial relative that indirectly got Jacob behind the bars, because he came to the Hahl home Friday evening with Jacob's friends and with the express determination of getting Jacob as drunk as a lord, won in that merry gentleman's idea of consanguineous duty.

When Mrs. Hahl heard this she predicted there would be trouble, and when Mrs. Hahl predicts there will be trouble Jacob says the tip is a good one to play if you want a run for your money.

Jacob therefore told his relative he'd better go, but that gentleman said he wasn't manufactured that way.

To throw the offending relative down the stairs might be robbing his own children and it might also hurt the stairs, so Jacob chose the lesser of two evils and got drunk with the gamey relative.

When the visitors had departed, Mrs. H. went after a policeman, although he protested having spent only 15 cents. He was hustled to the station and denied even the consoling influence of a bromo seltzer.

Judge Sidener believed in story. That is to say, he discharged the man, which might mean the same thing and might not.

Annie Ann No Kin to the Empress.

Mary Arnold, who is also known as Annie Ann an aged newspaper vender at Market street, and who is a regular patron of the police court, and not a mere transient, was charged with defacing property.

Mary hardly ever permits the charge against her to get beyond defacing the Queen's English. She keeps a full supply of vituperation bottled up and in reserve, which effervesces and in time knocks the cork out of the bottle, and the scene at Eighteenth and Market streets is suggestive of a New Jersey election day and would be appreciated by residents of Hoboken. Any little accident, however, is liable to accelerate this blow-off, and most of the small boys have the key to the situation.

The police keep memoranda of these periods, which recur at pretty regular intervals, and when the ounce of prevention method, putting her in a cool place, can be utilized, many of these explosions are cut off in their incipiency.

But, Friday evening, Mary kicked over the traces badly. It was a severe attack and profanity afforded her no relief whatever, though she gave it an honest trial. She even shocked the patrons of a saloon on the corner to a degree that suggested to the proprietor throwing a bucket of water over the old woman. Then Mary got angry in earnest and waded into the crowd which collected, wielding her heavy umbrella, urged by small boys to go in and win.

She proved quite as formidable as the Boers at Spion Kop, and Gen. Warren would admit as much himself. When the smoke of battle had cleared, a large window was minus a pane, and several innocent gentlemen were plus several pains.

The policeman then came and Mary "then went." If her next "spell" falls due as per police schedule, it will occur far from the madding crowd, which is to say, at the workhouse.

Charged With Stealing.—Michael Sweeney, 1455 O'Fallon street, is charged in a warrant issued Saturday with breaking into the store of Emil Seegal, 1304 North Broadway and stealing 23 pairs of gloves. Officers Dempsey and Kennedy captured Sweeney after a chase of several blocks, during which six shots were fired.

Blaze at the Laclede.—A linen sheet ignited by a spark from the chimney caused a small blaze on the roof of the Laclede Hotel Friday night. It was soon discovered and a porter was hurried to the scene with copious buckets of water. Inside of a few minutes the blaze was extinguished.

SPLINTER COST $25

MISS EDNA SEAMONDS WAS AWARDED DAMAGES.

SHE SUED THE GRAND-LEADER

Jury Required 17 Hours to Decide That a Splinter Got Into Her Foot Through Others' Fault.

It required a jury at Clayton seventeen hours to determine that Miss Edna Seamonds of 106 North Channing avenue, St. Louis, was entitled to $25 damages from the Grand-Leader.

A verdict was rendered at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The trial lasted all day Friday and the case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock.

The question at issue was: "When she went shopping at the Grand-Leader, Nov. 25, 1899, did Miss Seamonds have on a pair of shoes with holes in them, and was it through one of these holes that a splinter from the floor entered her foot, causing her great pain and partial loss of health?"

The suit, which was against Charles A. Stix, Julius A. Baer, Sigmond Baer and Aaron Fuller, proprietors of the Grand-Leader, was taken from the St. Louis Circuit Court to the St. Louis County Court on a change of venue.

Seddon and Blair, attorneys for the defense, fought the case on the ground that Miss Seamond's accident was the result of criminal negligence on her part, in that she was wearing an old shoe instead of a new one.

James E. Seddon, in cross-examining Miss Seamond Friday morning, tried persistently to get her to testify that at the time of the accident she had laid the blame on the old shoe.

"Didn't you say at the time," asked Mr. Seddon, "that if you had worn your new shoes instead of those old ones you would not have had the accident? Didn't you tell those who assisted you at the time that you ought to have worn the new pair you had just bought a few days before?"

Miss Seamonds persisted that she never had made any such statements.

"I might have made some remark about having on old shoes," she added, "but I didn't say anything about having a new pair at home. I don't believe I did have a new pair at home. I don't remember anything about them."

The defense produced evidence showing that the shoes Miss Seamands wore had holes in them and that it was through one of these holes—"a great big hole," Attorney Seddon declared—that the splinter passed into her foot.

The attorneys for the defense further tried repeatedly to find out why the plaintiff had not produced the shoe in court. That would have settled the whole matter, since it was all a question as to whether the shoes were strong enough to furnish proper protection to the plaintiff's foot.

IN FACE OF DEATH

MRS. MARY BENZLER AND CHILDREN HAVE DIPHTHERIA.

ONE CHILD ALREADY DEAD

Husband and Father Strangely Absent, Leaving the Mother to Bear the Burden With Heroism.

After the funeral Friday of her 5-months'-old son, Willie, Mrs. Mary Benzler, 5621 Bulwer avenue, and her five remaining children went to the City Hospital to be treated for the same disease that had caused the infant's death—diphtheria.

Not until death came to Willie Benzler did the mother, left alone by the unexplained absence of her husband, know the nature of the disease that had caused her baby's death.

Then she suddenly awakened to the fact that all of her other children had been exposed to the disease, and she decided to go at once to the hospital.

In the isolated ward where patients with contagious diseases are kept Mrs. Benzler and the five children occupy cots, side by side.

Mourning the loss of her youngest child, the mother fears the others may also be fatally afflicted.

Another difficulty confronting the mother is the fact, she states, that her husband, John Benzler, left home one week ago and she has not heard from him since.

Left alone at the sick bed of their dying child and by the side of its little casket after death, the mother had borne up bravely, but the hospital doctors say she may collapse from the nervous strain at any time.

The children now at the hospital are: Louisa, 16; Annie 7; Fred, 10; Herman, 4, and Henry, 2. Mrs. Benzler is but 32 years of age.

Big Building Leased.—A lease of the seven-story building at the northwest corner of Seventh and Poplar streets to the Simmons Hardware Company was recorded Friday afternoon. The term of the lease is 10 years and seven months, and the monthly rental is $590.62. The St. Louis Terminal Cupples Station Company owns the building.

DEMOCRATS ARE WILLING TO BET

They Are in Search of Offered Republican Money.

JUDGE BURTON SPOKE AT NOON

CHAIRMAN SEIBERT SAYS HE IS CONFIDENT.

Noonday Meetings Saturday at the Sound Money and Jefferson Clubs Attracted Large Audiences.

G. Y. Crenshaw, ex-United States marshal for the Western district of Missouri, and at present attached to the Democratic state committee headquarters in the Laclede Hotel, told the Post-Dispatch Saturday that he would like to find some of the money the Republicans want to bet even that Flory will be elected governor.

"I want to take all the bets of that kind I can get," he said, "and I will pay 25 per cent commission to the man who brings the money around, for his trouble in turning it over to me."

In this connection it was stated at the Democratic state headquarters Saturday morning that J. W. Armstrong and Emmett Newton, members of the state committee, had gone to the Republican state headquarters at the Lindell Hotel Friday night in search of even-money Flory betters, but were unable to locate any of them.

Chairman Seibert of the Democratic state committee declares he can see little foundation for the Republican claims that Congressmen Cowherd of Kansas City and Benton of Neosho will be defeated for re-election this year and Republicans sent to Washington in their places.

"At the meeting of the state committee yesterday," he stated to the Post-Dispatch Saturday, "we received reports from all sections of the state, and without exception they were of a favorable character. From the reports from Congressman Benton's district, I am confident he will be returned with a handsome majority, and while Congressman Cowherd is likely to lose a few votes because of the unfortunate conditions in Jackson County, I am, nevertheless, quite sure that he, too, will be re-elected."

Charles G. Burton of Nevada, Mo., ex-Judge and ex-Congressman, was the principal speaker at the Sound Money Club's downtown headquarters at noon Saturday. He is prominent in state Republican circles, and his address was listened to with much interest.

The club's campaign commitee went to exceptional pains to advertise Judge Burton's speech. For an hour before the time set for his oratory to begin, it had a brass band that played really attractive music promenading the downtown streets, with a youth who marched by the bass drummer's side holding aloft a large canvas placard on which the fact that Judge Burton of Nevada would speak at the Sound Money headquarters was brilliantly displayed.

Ben Deering, once a Democratic campaigner, arrived at the Republican state headquarters at the Lindell Saturday morning after a tour of Northern Missouri, in which he delivered a series of McKinley and Flory speeches.

Mr. Deering declares the apathy among the Democrats in the sections which he visited is unprecedented. He says that large crowds invariably attended the Republican meetings, while the Democratic managers experienced much difficulty in getting together respectable audiences for their best speakers to address.

Mr. Deering will return to the stump next week.

State Senator J. H. Davisson, noted as a prohibitionist as well as a Republican, is at the Laclede. He will address a local ward meeting Saturday night. The senator was a caller at Republican state headquarters Saturday morning.

J. A. Bradshaw of Richland, Mo., was among the other callers there Saturday morning.

The noonday meeting at the Jefferson Club's downtown headquarters in the Carleton Building Saturday was addressed by W. A. Carter of Montgomery City, Mo., Michael J. Gill and Walter D. Jones.

There will be a meeting at this headquarters at 8 o'clock Saturday afternoon of all the Democratic candidates on the city and legislative tickets.

Mayor James A. Reed of Kansas City will be in St. Louis Monday and will speak Monday night at the Jefferson Club meeting.

The Democratic convention in the Fifth legislative district, which nominated A. H. Robbins, D. J. O'Callaghan and George Neville for the lower house of the General Assembly, adopted a platform containing this plank: "That the candidates this day nominated are hereby instructed to support a franchise tax which will equitably tax that species of property." The platform also denounced Ziegenheinism and pledged the candidates to advocate every meritorious measure in the interest of organized labor.

Patrick O'Malley will open his campaign for Congress in the Eleventh district Saturday night at Hashagen's Hall, Leonard and Easton avenues.

The following Democratic speakers in addition to Mr. O'Malley will address the gathering: J. Frank Merriman, John H. Overall, George W. Lubke, John W. Evans, James C. Jones, E. A. Noonan, M. J. Gill, John T. Hunt and Charles F. Kelly.

C. M. O'Connell of Madison County, who was a representative in the last Legislature, was a caller at the Democratic state headquarters Saturday morning. He is not a candidate this year.

REVIEWING REGISTRATION.

Precinct Judges and Clerks Receiving Statements.

The precinct judges and clerks of election, Saturday morning, commenced the task of receiving statements of citizens who have been notified to appear before them as the result of the investigation which they have been conducting for three days past.

All whom the clerks have failed to locate at the addresses given by them when they registered must appear before the judges and clerks before 10 o'clock Saturday night or their names will be stricken from the registration books by default.

The polling place in the Eleventh precinct of the Fourteenth ward was ordered changed Saturday because of the outbreak of diphtheria in the dwelling house at Jefferson avenue and Bernard street, which was the first polling place chosen. The new polling place is at 2731 Adams street.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINATIONS.

Democratic Senatoral and Representative Candidates.

Democratic district conventions made the following legislative nominations Friday night:

Thirty-first senatorial district, John P. Collins; Thirty-third district, William J. Schoenlaub.

Second representive district, Patrick Garvey, T. M. Sanford and Emil Giovanoni; Third district, John W. Salmering and John O'Donnell; Fourth district, John Barret, John Lynch and Frank McCarty; Fifth district, A. H. Robbins, Jr., D. J. O'Callaghan and George Neville; Sixth district, William P. Lightholder and Mathew Holland.

Meeting of Union Officials.—There will be a special meeting of all president and secretaries of unions in St. Louis Sunday evening at Walhalla Hall for the purpose of considering important matters of interest to union men. The meeting is called by order of the Central Trades and Labor Union.

"FROM ME TO YOU"

If Regal Shoes were made in the usual way and sold by dealers you would have to pay $5 or $6 for them. If you bought them in the regular way you would have to pay that price, because the tanner, the commission man, the manufacturer, the jobber and the retailer would all have to have a slice of profit.

Regal Shoes are sold only in our own stores or direct by mail from us—no other dealers can get them.

Regal Shoes are not a two-priced shoe. The price is $3.50 for every pair of shoes we make, and the price never changes. When you go into stores charging two prices for their shoes, the salesmen get paid for inducing you to buy the highest priced shoe in the place.

When you go away you will wonder what the difference in the shoes really is anyway. That wonder will grow when shortly after you find that at some sort of sale the price of the shoes for which you paid $5 or $6 has been reduced to $3.50.

Why not buy shoes which, while they have no superior from any point of view, are always sold at one price?

COURT DOESN'T EXIST

CASES TRANSFERRED TO "SOUTH OF WYOMING STREET."

SERIOUS CLERICAL ERROR

Dayton Street Police Court Clerk Has Sent Cases to a Court Which Has No Existence in St. Louis.

Harry Grannemann, keeping a slot machine.
Charles Mitchell, idling.
T. C. Dewar, disturbing the peace.
Joseph Daneri, keeping a dangerous dog.
William Schultz, disturbing the peace.

All of these defendants are apt to be set free as the result of a technical error in transferring their cases from one police court to another.

The cases against them are set for trial in a court that does not exist.

They were originally arraigned in the Dayton Street Police Court, but made application for a change of venue. Judge Wisilizenus ordered that the cases be transferred to the Wyoming Street Police Court. In each case the defendants, who were under bond, were required to give a new bond. These bonds ranged from $50 to $200.

Clerk John H. Spears filled out the new bonds and made out the papers which he certified that the cases were to be tried in the "police court south of Wyoming street."

Officially there is no such court and no court which will answer that description.

In the new city ordinances the official designation of the Wyoming street court is "the police court south of Arsenal street." The court is located north of Wyoming street.

The cases had not been entered on the docket of the Wyoming street court Saturday morning and the point was raised as to the court's jurisdiction.

Attorneys say the error cannot be treated merely as a clerical one, and that while the transcripts might be corrected, not even the clerk who made the mistake would be authorized to change the wording of the bonds which make up a part of the record sent to the Wyoming street court.

If the cases are docketed there is likely to be a series of warm legal tilts in Judge Zimmerman's usually quiet tribunal.

DRIVER BADLY INJURED.

Caze Steele Thrown Over an Embankment Saturday Afternoon.

Caze Steele, colored, 42 years old, was probably fatally hurt in an accident at Broadway and Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, shortly after noon Saturday.

Steele was driving a wagon belonging to the Hezel Milling Co. The streets are torn up at Collinsville avenue and Broadway, and his horse ran away and pulled the wagon over an embankment. Steele was thrown to the bottom, a distance of 12 feet, and one of the wheels fell on top of him. He was taken to his home on Railroad street. Steele has been in the employ of the Hezel Milling Co. for 13 years.

Charged With Trespass. — John Burns, Isie Mallsofsky, Barney King, Henry Deitrick and Charles Miller, ranging in age from 15 to 20 years, were arrested in the vacant building at Third and Chestnut streets Friday afternoon. They will be sent to the police court on charges of trespass.

"Ninety Per Cent,"

Says Dr. Bennett, the Authority on Electricity, "Suffer From Some Form of Sexual Weakness"—The Doctor Advises You to Look Out for Imitations of His Electric Belt—Rheumatism Cured by Electricity.

Fully 90 per cent of the present generation suffer from Sexual Weakness in some form, and I know there is only one radical and perfect cure, and that is electricity properly applied. Nature gave each man and woman certain organs that were to perform a distinct service — all to act in harmony. Nature did not intend there should be a weak or diseased condition of any one of these organs. Excesses make men weak.

Dr. Bennett's Electric Belt

RHEUMATISM Is a blood disease—a poison in the blood. The blood is loaded with uric and lactic acids, which is caused by a failure of the kidneys to perform their proper functions. The treatment of Rheumatism has always baffled the followers of drug treatment, and no permanent or perfect cures were ever effected until the scientific application of Electricity became known—that is, how to apply an unwavering current that would penetrate the system. The current from ordinary batteries and electric belts will not penetrate, the current cannot penetrate through the crude electrodes used, being retained upon the surface. My Electric Belt, with its soft, silken, chamois-covered sponge water chamber electrodes, used on no other electrical appliance, being my own invention, will speedily and permanently cure Rheumatism in all its various forms, and the cure I unequivocally guarantee. It will reduce the swelling from inflammatory Rheumatism in 24 hours and allay all pain immediately. A whole family can be cured with one belt. It is the greatest family remedy known, and should be indispensable in every household. My Belt, like all others, will burn out in time, but can be renewed for only 75 cents; no other belt can be renewed for any price, and when burned out is worthless.

All other Belts have bare metal electrodes that burn, fry, blister and almost cremate the patient. Vertigris, on account of the chemical action of the current, accumulates on the bare metal and may cause blood poisoning and perhaps death. If you have been misled into buying one of these, send it to me as half price of one of mine. Some concerns would make you believe their electrodes are like mine when they cover the bare discs with a thin veneering of chamois or felt. Electricity cannot pass through this veneering, but vertigris can. Beware of "Free Trials" and "Pay When Cured" concerns. They are tricky. Write to me for an exposé of their methods. If you write to some of these concerns they will not wait for you to order—they will send you their goods C. O. D., $30 or $40. My Belt is much less expensive to you than the imitation, and my electrodes alone cost more to manufacture than the entire belt of other makes.

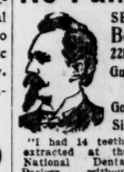

You may think I exaggerate and say my Electric Belt will do too much, but the truth is, I cannot say too much about it, for I worked the best part of my life to perfect an appliance to apply Electricity to the human system so as to make cures and not inconvenience you, and I succeeded. I was dissatisfied with the ordinary methods of applying Electricity as taught in colleges and elaborated in medical works, as experiment demonstrated such methods a failure. This spurred me on to find the true way, and I found the true way, as you will know should you need treatment and begin with my Belt.

Knowing beyond the possibility of a doubt that my Electric Belt will cure Impotency, Lost Manhood, Varicocele and all Sexual Weaknesses in either sex, restore Shrunken and Undeveloped Organs and Vitality, cure Kidney, Liver and Bladder Troubles, Chronic Constipation, Dyspepsia, all Female Complaints, etc., I absolutely guarantee the cure in each case. I hope to obtain you as one of my patients; you will not be experimented with—you will be cured.

I have written a book, "The Finding of the Fountain of Eternal Youth," sent free, postpaid, for the asking, which will tell you all about it. Call or write today. Sold only by

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—There was active trading at the opening of the stock market, and prices moved upward throughout the list. Gains in the iron and steel stocks and in the local traction stocks were most marked, but very large blocks of the leading railroad stocks changed hands. The grangers and southwesterns and western railroads generally were conspicuous.

The movement of prices became very much confused through large realizations in some stocks and aggressive strength in others. Declines were not large outside of People's Gas, which lost 1¼. Business became less active after a time, but towards 11 o'clock the market became generally strong, under the leadership of the Tobaccos, Northern Pacific, Louisville Pacific Mail and the iron and steel stocks.

The demand for stocks continued very active and broad into the second hour, but the offerings so nearly balanced the buying that prices showed very little variation. The American Hoop stock and Federal Steel advanced 2@3¼. The bank statement showed an unexpectedly large shrinkage of reserves, but speculative sentiment was apparently not affected, and the large buying continued with undiminished confidence and with no yielding of prices. The closing was furiously active and buoyant at the top level.

ADVANCE IN PACIFIC MAIL

On Assurances That Ship Subsidy Bill Will Be Passed.

By Wire to Bennett Wasserman & Co.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Pacific Mail stock sharply advanced this morning on the New York Stock Exchange, transactions being heavy in the security for the first time in some weeks.

On the assurance that the ship subsidy bill, in which the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. is heavily involved, would be passed at the next session of Congress, large buying orders were executed in the stock, and within a comparatively short time a gain of almost 2 points from the day's opening figure had been recorded, the stock going from 36¼ to 38 within a very short time, which was a gain of 3½ from Friday's quotations.

Wall Street Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The market advanced on large dealings on last Saturday's good bank statement and the further additions to reserves promised by the gold imports, decreased interior movement of currency and pension disbursements by the sub-treasury. A large short interest was driven to cover, helping on the advance and outside buying was attracted by the growing confidence in the business outlook. With the reduction of the short interest, the taking of profits made inroads upon prices and a bear party was organized on the basis of possible further disturbance in money rates by large future requirements. The operations of bears were strongly contested by a well equipped bull party.

SMALL COTTON ADVANCES.

Futures on Weather Reports and Fair Buying Show Improvement.

By Wire to Bennett Wasserman & Co., St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Fair-sized short covering in the future cotton market caused a stronger close today, the absence of liquidation being a helpful influence, and doing much to aid the market to a higher level.

Pending more definite crop advices, traders were disposed to hesitate, but the bullish weekly report of The Chronicle, together with some unauthenticated frost news, and the aforesaid covering, was responsible for the small gains with which the market ended the week.

Early cables from abroad were 1½ points higher, the Liverpool market closing at like gains for futures and 1-16d up for spots, on fair-sized business.

Estimated port receipts for the day were 52,000 bales, against 54,752 bales last week and 33,017 bales last year. The movement from southern ports kept up quite heavily, though in lesser amount than last week.

The Chronicle report for the week stated that favorable weather has been the rule. In most sections the picking has made good progress, while in many parts it is almost completed. The recent decline in the price of the staple has caused the farmers and merchants in Alabama to hold back their cotton.

The "in-sight" figures were given as 505,000 bales for the week, making a total since Sept. 1 of 2,232,000 bales, against 2,271,000 bales last year. The total visible supply of cotton is now 2,099,000 bales, as against 3,098,000 bales at this time last year.

In the early local market there were small gains of from 1@3 points, on fair buying from many quarters. The southern bears began covering during the latter portion of the first hour and this caused activity to ensue, the local quotations immediately showing improvement.

Some sections reported cold rains during last night. This, together with a sharp advance at New Orleans, put this market 4@10 points higher, with spots firm but unchanged.

At the close net gains were 5@11 points in the nearby months, 2@4 points in the latter options and 1 point in the Aug. future. Business was slightly better toward the close.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Dec. wheat opened today ⅛c lower at 74⅛c to 74⅛@74¼c, and sold to 74c, traders being disappointed over cables. Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛d lower. Unsettled weather in the northwest gave rise to a demand from shorts, which resulted in a rally to 74⅜c. Trade was quiet and mostly local. Receipts here were 193 cars, 7 of contract grade, while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 506 cars against 486 last week and 715 a year ago.

December later advanced to 74⅝@74¾c, closing firm, ¼c higher, at 74⅝c. A better general demand for flour was reported and three-fourths of the North Dakota crop was reported already marketed.

There was a fair trade in corn early and the market was firm under the influence of steady cables, light country offerings and the receipts, 526 cars, here. Dec. opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 35¼@35½c, and sold to 35⅝. Commission houses were the best buyers, partly for seaboard people.

December closed firm, ¼c higher, at 35⅝c.

Oats were quiet and firm in sympathy with corn and on the receipts, 263 cars. Dec. opened a shade lower at 21⅞@22c and sold to 22@22⅛c.

Provisions were fairly active and firm on light hog receipts and higher prices at the yards. Packers bought lard and ribs and sold pork. Jan. pork opened 2½c higher at $11.42½; Jan. lard unchanged at $6.65, and Jan. ribs a shade higher at $6.

WHEAT WAS NARROW

FUTURES CLOSED WITH ONLY A SMALL CHANGE.

DEMAND FAIR AT THE CLOSE

The wheat market closed with higher prices for all wheat futures, under a somewhat improved demand.

December wheat closed ¼c up for the day, and May ⅛@¼c up.

December corn closed ⅛@¼c up, and May ⅛@¼c up.

The oats market was steady, the October future being the only one changed from last night's close, being ¼c down.

Wheat continued today to maintain a narrow range, trading being restricted to opening sales and a few trades later in the session, but the volume of business was light and price changes were few and of slight importance.

The market opened with a decline of ⅛@1c on unresponsive cables and free selling by longs.

On the continuation of this unloading the market for Dec. broke from 72⅜c, the opening figure, to 72¼c, and then rallied back to 72⅞c and weakened to 72⅝c.

May opened at 72⅞c, and after sagging to 72⅝c@72¾c, advanced to 73⅛c.

Scalpers were again out in force and ruled the market throughout the day, buying and selling small lots when they saw a profit, and in this way keeping the market both steady and narrow.

Receipts today at the local market and the northwest towns were fair, but not of a character to cause changes in price, as the buying and selling was limited to quick purchases or sales for immediate profits.

Liverpool closed unchanged for wheat, and Paris 10@20 centimes or ⅛@1c down.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth today were 506 cars, as compared with 715 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis today were 74,058 bu, compared with 23,314 bu same date last year. Of these 3759 sacks and 78 cars were local, compared with 362 sacks and 28 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at primary points today were 1,058,665 bu, as compared with 1,033,000 bu same date last year.

Corn Prices Were Stronger.

The corn market was slow to get started, but after the pit got tired of bidding for the other grains they gave their attention to this cereal and caused fractional rallies.

October was offered early in the session at 37c, and the nsold at this figure. December was bid 34⅛@34¼c, 34¼c, 34¼@34⅜c, 34⅜@34½c, and at last sold at 34¼c. May was bid 35¼c, 35⅜@35½c, 35½c and 35½@35⅝c, but in the early market and until late in the day no sales were recorded.

Liverpool closed unchanged for corn.

Danubian corn shipments were nil this week, compared with 64,000 bu last week and 34,400 bu last year.

Receipts of corn at St. Louis today were 101,260 bu, compared with 60,040 bu same date last year. Of these 824 sacks and 71 cars were local, compared with 16 sacks and 38 cars same date last year.

Receipts of corn at primary points today were 600,843 bu, as compared with 628,000 bu same date last year.

Oct. oats had a bid of 22½c and Dec. sold at 22½c and May at 24⅝c. These figures were recorded in the early market. Little was done later; few bid or offer prices being recorded.

Receipts of oats at St. Louis today were 66,265 bu, compared with 33,600 bu same date last year. Of these 53 sacks and 49 cars were local, compared with 21 cars same date last year.

COL. BRYAN'S RAPID RUN.

Getting Into Rochester the Speed of His Train Was 65 Miles an Hour.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The railroads did some very rapid work to get Mr. Bryan to Rochester somewhere near the time. On the Delaware, Lackawana & Western between Utica and Rochester a speed of 65 miles an hour was reached, although the road winds considerably.

At one point the train lurched so violently that the sauce bottles and glasses were whirled off the dining tables.

SENATOR JONES ON COTTON TRUST

Declares It Is a Plain Commercial Enterprise.

OWNS AND OPERATES PATENT

American Cotton Co., He says, No More a Trust Than Company Which Controls Copyrights on Roosevelt's "Rough Riders."

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Chairman James K. Jones of the Democratic national committee has issued a statement replying to the references by Gov. Roosevelt and others to the American Cotton Co., of which Senator Jones is an officer, and which, it is charged, is a trust.

In his statement Senator Jones said: "The American Cotton Co., with which I am connected, is no more a trust than any commercial house and any stock farm, cotton plantation or any other industrial enterprise in the United States.

"The company, as I have heretofore explained, operates on a patent right. Of course, it seeks a market for its products and steadily seeks to extend its business. Roosevelt's allegation that I am connected with a trust is as mendacious as the Republican charge that the Democratic party is composed of anarchists and that Democrats contemplated an assault upon the Supreme Court of the United States. Roosevelt might just as well denounce me for growing cotton on my land as to denounce me for being connected with the American Cotton Co.

"If Roosevelt is ready to move for the abolition and prohibition of all patents and copyrights, I will make ready to consider the question. The customers of the American Cotton Co., operating under a patent, have as many rights, or ought to have, as the customers of the company operating under a copyright that sells 'The Rough Riders' and other works published by Roosevelt.

"Because the Democrats oppose trusts and monopolies is no reason why Democrats should not engage in legitimate business. Because we advocate equal rights and oppose special privileges rough writers like Roosevelt, seem to think we ought to abandon industry and business altogether. This alone shows the degrading influence of the trusts now controlling the Republican party. They would spread this spirit of the trust over the intellect and political thought if they had the power."

MAN KILLED BY A CAR

TIMOTHY HOOLIHAN GROUND TO DEATH UNDER WHEELS.

BOTH TRUCKS STRUCK HIM

He Was a Trackman for the Suburban Company, One of Whose Cars Ran Over Him.

Timothy Hoolihan, aged 35 years, of 2274 Blendar place, was ground to death early Saturday morning by the wheels of a westbound Suburban car at West Cabanne court. His remains were taken to the Morgue to await the action of his relatives.

According to the police, Hoolihan had been drinking and was rambling along the track when the accident happened. Two hours before he was killed he rode from the downtown district to Maple avenue on a Suburban car. He entered a Maple avenue saloon and purchased a drink, it is said, and then strolled westward on the Suburban tracks.

He had not walked far when a car, moving rapidly, struck him. Both trucks passed over his body, mangling it almost beyond recognition.

Hoolihan was a trackman in the employ of the Suburban company. He lived with his family. The car that killed him was in charge of Motorman Paul Dasquez and Conductor Matthew Donnelly.

The accident was witnessed by Michael J. Casey of 4818 Easton avenue, Michael Conway of 2408 South Jefferson avenue and Miles O'Donnell of 6884 Cabanne avenue.

Matchless Opportunities

For homes in the Lone Star State.

East and south Texas lands are becoming famous for their remarkable fertility in the production of fruit and vegetables of the finest quality. Especially is this true of the lands located along the International & Great Northern Railroad. In the vicinity of Willis, Tex., some of the finest bright tobaccos in the world are being grown in large and paying quantities. Desirable farms, small and large, may be had on very easy terms.

CHANGED HIS NOSE

OMAHA MAN'S QUEER PLAN TO DECEIVE HIS WIFE.

LIVED IN THE HOUSE WITH HER

She Did Not Recognize Him Until He Had Stolen Their Child and Disappeared.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 20.—Did H. J. Vandegrift disguise himself by facial surgery in order to deceive his wife and get an opportunity to kidnap their child? That is the question that is bothering the police of Omaha.

Vandegrift was studying medicine in Chicago ten days ago. Two months ago a man, giving the name of Fred Miller, began boarding at the house where Mrs. Vandegrift resided. Her husband had gray hair when she saw him last and his nose was retrousse at that time. Miller had a marked aquiline nose and brown hair. Every time Miller saw Mrs. Vandegrift looking at him closely he turned his face. He would not eat at the same table with her and kept closely to his room. After a week the child of Mrs. Vandegrift suddenly disappeared and since then Miller has not been seen.

The police today discovered the child at Coffeyville, Kan., with the parents of Vandegrift. A search of Miller's room revealed a piece of torn envelope with H. J. Vandegrift's name on it. In another paper found there was a reference to facial surgery.

MUCH FEVER AT HAVANA.

Nineteen Americans Have the Yellow Jack Owing to Spanish Emigration.

HAVANA, Oct. 20.—There are 92 cases of yellow fever, all in Havana. Nineteen Americans are down with the disease. The death rate among the American victims has been 8 per cent. The fever is decreasing now. There is no disposition on the part of the authorities to misrepresent the situation. The coming of so many Spanish immigrants has been the cause of the increase over last year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Gen. Charles E. Furlong is such an ardent Republican that he has come to vote all the way from Southern Rissia, where he went last spring, big game hunting. He timed his trip so that he could get back on time to register. After he votes he is going back to the Caucasus mountains to finish his hunting trip. He says the sport is fine and bear hunting particularly choice.

Consult Mrs. Pinkham

No Other Person Has So Wide An Experience with Woman's Ills; Nor Such a Record of Success.—"A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills."—Her Advice Led Miss Farrell to Health.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman. She dreads the humiliation of it all.

She therefore puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful sickness.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office, where she has undergone a critical examination, more or less discouraged.

This condition of mind destroys the effect of advice, and she grows worse rather than better.

In consulting Mrs. Pinkham, in person or by letter, no hesitation need be felt. The story is told to a woman, and is entirely confidential—to a woman who has listened to thousands of similar stories—and who is so competent to advise women because of vast experience, and because she is a woman. Her advice is absolutely free to all sick women, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Read Miss Farrell's account of how she was sick, and was lead to health by Mrs. Pinkham. She is only one of thousands whom Mrs. Pinkham has cured this year.

Female Weakness Relieved by Mrs. Pinkham.

"I take pleasure in writing you a few lines thanking you for your advice. I did just as you told me in taking your medicine, and owe my life to you. You are like a mother to your sex. I was awful sick, was all run down, and felt sick all over. I looked like a person brought out of the grave. My face was as white as the driven snow. I was always tired after doing a little work, and would have to sit down. I had terrible pains and headaches, and my appetite was not good; also, troubled with shortness of breath. I could not go up one flight of stairs without being tired and having to stop to get my breath. I was feeling just as miserable as could be. I took two bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and cannot express my thanks to you for what your medicine has done for me."—Miss M. S. Farrell, 35 Devon St., Grove Hall, Boston, Mass.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES.

FALL AND WINTER PROGRAM OF THE ETHICAL SOCIETY.

ST. KEVIN'S FAIR AND FESTIVAL.

Dr. McKittrick Plans a Series of Sermons on the Striking Topic, "The Christianity of Christ."

Notices intended for this department should be in the Post-Dispatch office not later than Friday morning to insure insertion. Announcements of services should be sent from week to week as they cannot be kept standing.

The Ethical Society Sunday morning lectures for the general public are to be resumed on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at Memorial Hall, the subjects for the first two Sundays to be "The Good Side to Prosperity," and "The Good Side to Adversity." The Ethical Sunday school has already resumed its meetings with the superintendent, W. H. Lighty. It has 21 classes in a graded course of moral instruction for the young, with about 100 pupils, meeting at 9:45 o'clock Sunday mornings. The art section, organized for the purpose of studying "Ethical Tendencies in Art," will hold its meetings at 10:30 o'clock on alternate Tuesday mornings this season, and expects to have a series of 10 illustrated lectures on "The Story of Architecture," by Prof. Holmes Smith of the Washington University. An important change in the work of the Greek Ethics Club this year is to be in taking up for the season as the theme for study, "The Bible as Literature," the meetings, as heretofore, being held on alternate Wednesday afternoons at 4 o'clock, in the west wing of the Museum of Fine Arts. Among the classes being organized under the auspices of the Young People's Union is one for men and women on "The Poet Tennyson," to be conducted by Prof. Percy H. Boynton of the Smith Academy, and one for young men on the "Elements of Political Economy," by Prof. Hoxie of the Washington University. Both these classes will be open to all who may care to join them. The Men's Philosophical Club will begin its meeting the second Monday in November, with two lectures by Prof. Frank Thilly of the University of Missouri, on "Plato and Aristotle." A plan is under way also for arranging some Sunday evening lectures this season, to be given by citizens of this city, on "The History and Needs of St. Louis." The executive committee of the Ethical Society has recently organized with Mr. Robert Moore as chairman; Mr. A. G. Fish as secretary, and Mr. Joseph Taussig as treasurer.

St. Kevin's Church, Park and Pennsylvania avenues, is planing a fair and festival on a large scale. It will take place at Compton Hall, Compton and Park avenues, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The parishioners held meetings this week, many of the prominent members of the church being in attendance and accepting committee appointments. The pastor, Rev. E. J. Shea, presided and gave the laymen the benefit of his experience with fairs and festivals during the last 25 years. Many more were decided upon, among them being a contest as to the most popular candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District. As St. Kevin's Church is located between the Thirteenth and Twenty-third wards, where the political issues are being warmly debated, the contest promises to be an interesting one. A gold-headed cane will be given to the most popular candidate.

Rev. W. J. McKittrick will begin in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday morning a series of sermons upon "The Christianity of Christ." For the first sermon the division of this subject will be, "What Christ Says About the Fatherhood of God." The sermons to follow in course under the same general topic will be as follows: Oct. 28, "What Christ Says About His Own Personality;" Nov. 4, "What Christ Says About the Spirit;" Nov. 11, "What Christ Says About the Kingdom;" Nov. 18, "What Christ Says About the Redemption;" Nov. 25, "What Christ Says About the Judgment."

The opening Sunday night service of the Second Baptist Church at Temple Shaare Emeth was attended by over 1300 persons by count. Sunday night a fine service of praise is announced, with an address by Dr. Boyd on "Some Social Dangers."

The women of the Second Baptist Church hold their first meeting this fall next Tuesday, at 2:30 p. m., in the parlors of the church. It will be a current topics class.

The Taylor Avenue Baptist Church will open an afternoon mission Sunday school at 1420 North Taylor avenue next Sunday, Oct. 21, at 3 p. m. J. S. Campbell has been appointed superintendent, and M. S. Loomis assistant. The neighborhood is densely populated and the prospects for a flourishing school are excellent.

Evangelist Chester Birch will open a series of revival services in Curby Memorial Church Wednesday night. He will have the assistance of a large choir.

The open meeting of the Woman's Benevolent Aid Society, an auxiliary of the First Spiritual Association, is held every Friday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock, at Howard's Hall, Thirtieth and Olive streets. These meetings are becoming very interesting. They comprise music, debates or short talks on matters pertaining to spiritualism, and tests by a good medium.

On next Monday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Church Sunday School Institute at the Schuyler Memorial House, 1214 Locust street. The discussion will be on "Some Essentials of Sunday School Work," and will be led by Miss Mabel A. Wilson. All Sunday school workers are invited to be present.

A class for the study of the Bible from the standpoint of spiritualism will be held each Sunday at 2:30 p. m., under the auspices of the Church of Spiritual Unity, conducted by Rev. W. F. Peck, at 911 North Vandeventer avenue.

The feast of the anniversary of the dedication of the Cathedral of St. Louis will be solemnly celebrated throughout the archdiocese of St. Louis Sunday and will be continued in the city for eight days. The feast has a special significance for the old Cathedral at Second and Walnut streets this year, as it is being decorated, refitted and thoroughly prepared to continue the work of the church down town for at least another half-century. The Sunday services will commence at 10:30 a. m. at the old Cathedral with solemn high mass, followed by benediction of the most blessed sacrament. A special sermon on the work of this church during the present century will be preached by Rev. E. J. Shea of St. Kevin's Church. Prof. D. S. De Lisle, the Cathedral organist and choirmaster, has prepared special music, which will be rendered by Mrs. F. A. Torrence, Mrs. N. J. Hamilton and Miss Margaret Walker, soprani; Misses Sadie Collins, Mary Torrence, Genevieve Martin, Ida Curtman and M. Martin, contraltos; Messrs. F. A. Torrence, N. J. Hamilton, Alfred W. M. The workers of Union Mission, 1432 Franklin avenue, have made a special appeal to the public for cast-off clothing, furniture and donations of all kinds for the poor in opening up their fall and winter work. Plans are being perfected to do the best work this winter that the mission has ever known among the poor. A special feature will be the work among mothers and children. A card sent to the pastor, Rev. M. B. Gott, at the mission, will bring a wagon for all donations.

Rev. W. B. Gouby closed his ten days' engagement in a revival meeting at Union Mission Thursday night. Many were converted. The meetings will be continued by Mother Cooke of Chicago, the woman who was instrumental in leading D. L. Moody into the higher Christian life. Mrs. Cooke will have charge of the services Saturday night.

On Sunday evening the stock company of St. Thomas of Aquin parish will give an entertainment and hop for the benefit of the Church of the Holy Family at Lemp's Park Hall. Gilbert Patten's play, "A Man of Millions," will be produced.

The women of the First Christian Church meet in the parlors of the church every Wednesday.

The second mass meeting of the season, under the auspices of the St. Louis Baptist Young People's Union, will be held Friday evening at the Third Baptist Church. Dr. E. E. Chivers of Chicago will address the audience on "Character and Service." A banner will be awarded the local society having the largest percentage of its actual membership present.

Rev. Thomas Grimshaw, pastor of the First Spiritual Association, is in Cleveland, O., attending the National Spiritualist Association convention, but will be back in time to give both morning and evening lectures Sunday.

The Compton Heights Christian Church will begin a series of revival services tomorrow, to continue several weeks. Services will be held each evening during the week, except Saturday, at 8 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. S. B. Moore, will be joined on Monday by Rev. S. D. Dutcher of Mexico, Mo. Mr. Dutcher is pastor of a large church at Louisville, Ky., Oct. 23-25. It will be of unusual interest and importance on account of the disordered condition of many foreign missionary fields and the acquisition of our new dependencies. The opening sermon will be preached by the Bishop of Kyoto. Rev. E. P. Little of Hannibal and Col. F. W. Blees of Macon are the elected delegates from this diocese. Bishop Tuttle will also be present.

The fall meeting of the Missouri Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held Oct. 30 in the Schuyler Memorial House, and it is expected that Rt.-Rev. Dr. Edsall, Bishop of North Dakota, and Rev. Lloyd, general secretary of the Board of Missions, will be present and make addresses.

November will be All Saints' Day and will be observed in all Episcopal churches with special services.

Rev. Brandt, on account of continued bad health, has been compelled to resign the pastorship of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, which he has held since the organization of the congregation. On account of his faithful labors and the high esteem in which he is held by the congregation the title of "pastor emeritus" has been conferred upon him.

For many years St. Mary's Orphans' Home has been on Fifteenth street and Clark avenue, but, having outgrown its limitations and requiring a larger and more modern building, it has been determined to change locations. Its new building, opposite Calvary Cemetery, has been erected and finished, and the officers and inmates are now quartered in it. It will be dedicated soon.

The Sunday services at Temple Ishael, led by Dr. Harrison, will commence for the season Sunday morning. The music, as heretofore, will be made an attractive feature of the program. The addresses by Dr. Harirson have always been enjoyed by large audiences on these occasions.

The annual convention of the Disciples of Christ has been in convention this week at Kansas City, Mo.

The Women's and Young Women's Christian Association elected the following officers for the state association Thursday: Mrs. C. C. Rainwater of St. Louis, president; Mrs. M. A. Potts of Kansas city, first vice-president; Miss Belle Baker of St. Louis, second vice-president; Mrs. D. K. Kuhn of St. Louis, secretary; Mrs. W. P. Stewart of St. Louis, assistant secretary; Mrs. Hickok of St. Louis, treasurer; Mrs. L. R. Moore of Kansas City, director for Kansas City; Miss Alice Lytton, director for St. Louis; Mrs. Barron of St. Louis, director for the training school; Mrs. Bryant of St. Louis, director for the Blind Girls' Home; Mrs. H. H. Wagoner of St. Louis, director for the White Cross Home; Mrs. Springer, director for the Memorial Home; Mrs. Palmer of St. Louis, director of the Methodist Orphans' Home; Mrs. Ittner of St. Louis, director for the St. Louis South Side Nursery; Mrs. Cozman of St. Louis, director for Isabella Crow Kindergarten; Mrs. Eller for the St. Louis Orphans' Home; Mrs. Carpenter for the Baptist Orphans' Home and Mrs. Marshall for the Children's Home Finding Society.

Many members of the Epworth League are arranging to attend the convention at San Francisco next July by each month depositing in some trust company a certain sum which, by the time of the meeting, will provide ample funds for the trip.

Forty Hours' Adoration will be held Oct. 21, 22 and 23 at St. John's Catholic Church.

A revival has been held during the week at the Fourth Christian Church by Rev. Mr. Farland, the pastor. The meetings have been held every evening. There have been many accessions.

A very enjoyable and well attended concert on Friday evening was given for the Junior Department of the Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A. by the "Romey's Boys" Concert Company of Chicago. A special matinee for the school children was given Saturday afternoon.

The annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Baptist Orphans' Home was held Thursday afternoon at the home, 1906 Lafayette avenue. Reports were read which showed an unusually successful year's work. It was found that over $500 remained in the ternsury. Succeeding other business the election of officers for the ensuing year was taken up. The same officers were chosen without exception: Mrs. A. H. Ellers, president; Mrs. F. H. Dodge, secretary; Mrs. W. B. Harrison, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. B. Thompson, treasurer. Thanks were extended to the Young Ladies' Auxiliary Board for their assistance in the work of the last year.

Dr. E. E. Chivers, general secretary of the Baptist Young People's Union, will visit St. Louis next week and deliver an address at the Third Baptist Church, Friday evening.

This month is that of the Holy Rosary. It is a season of special devotion to the Mother, under the title of the Queen of the Holy Rosary. Other forms of devotion in honor of the Mother prevail, but the Rosary is the most common and popular. Services in observance thereof will be held in many of the Catholic church during the month.

The new and beautiful altar dedicated to St. Joseph and donated to St. Francis Xavier's Church will be finished next week. This altar will add greatly to the artistic interior of the church.

Several young women conduct a Sunday-school every Sunday afternoon at the Children's Home Finding Society, on Chestnut street, near Beaumont street. There are now in the home 40 children, and as it is carried on by donations the managers ask the charitably disposed to send cast-off clothing to them.

Rev. T. E. Sharp and wife of Wagoner Place M. E. Church tendered a reception the young people of the congregation on Friday evening. The grounds surrounding this church are beautifully kept, and much attention is given to the grass and flowers. Electric lights in profusion have been placed about the church and the street, during these dark nights, is lighted by the congregation for the benefit of those coming to night services.

On Sunday afternoon the Very Rev. Felix Ward will deliver a lecture at the parish church of the Passionate Fathers, St. Ann's, Normandy. His subject will be "My Trip to Europe." A fine musical program has been also aranged.

The Episcopal Missionary Council will be held
